UAW Offers Plan Against Inflation

Propose Cut In Price Of Cars Also Change In Union Contract

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers union has proposed to the big three of the automobile industry that they cut prices on 1958 models by an average of at least $100 a car and in return the UAW will modify its new contract demands next year in a joint move to combat inflation.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther Saturday disclosed the proposal in making public letters sent Friday to General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp.

There was no immediate comment from the auto firms.

Reuther said the proposal was based on the unanimous action of the UAW International Executive Board. He said he was suggesting "a positive and practical proposal for making an effective beginning in stopping and reversing the inflationary trend." He noted that President Eisenhower has asked management and labor to exercise restraint in price and wage policies.

Stable Price Level

Declaring that neither corporation profits nor union "aspirations" were paramount, Reuther told presidents of the big three:

"Transcending both by far are the interests of the American people as a whole in a stable price level. For that reason, we are confident our members will be willing to take the consequences in collective bargaining if the price reductions we propose should make it impossible to meet all of their just demands and still maintain a reasonable rate of profit."

Will Share Risk

Reuther added, "In other words, we are not asking you to take any risk that we are not prepared to share."

The UAW's contracts with the big three run out next spring around June 1.

The union has announced that its top goal in new contract negotiations will be a shorter week and a substantial increase in take home pay.

Earlier Proposal

Earlier this year Reuther proposed to the heads of the auto companies that they get together with the union in separate management-union talks to explore the idea of a shorter work week before the start of bargaining sessions. The companies turned down the proposal.

Reuther told the big three heads "We are deeply disturbed by reports that the auto industry is once again preparing to increase car prices when 1958 models are introduced, thus contributing further to spiraling inflation."

Presents Challenge

"The inflationary crisis," he said, "presents a challenge to leadership. Our industry is in a uniquely favorable position to provide such leadership in reversing the inflationary trend."

Reuther said a $100 price cut in

JULY 1957 TAX COLLECTIONS DOWN FROM LAST JULY'S

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois sales tax collections in July were $24,010,034 down $61,000 from last July, Director Richard J. Lyons of the State Revenue Department said today.

Collections from nine major tax sources, including the sales tax, totaled $46,812,186, or $962,584 less than a year ago.

This included an apparent decrease in liquor gallonage tax revenue of $616,170. This was caused, Lyons said, by a change in law which provides that beer stamps need no longer be purchased in advance, but may be bought at the end of a month according to the amount of beer sold in the period.

U.S. Gets Set To Fight Asiatic Flu Epidemic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is getting set to fight a probable large-scale epidemic of Asiatic flu this fall or winter.

The malady is a new variety of centuries-old influenza, a disease once attributed by astrologers to the evil influence of unhappy conjunctions of stars. Influenza gets its name from the Italian word for influence.

The Public Health Service has taken the lead in marshaling overall national defenses — including aiding in the development of a new but limited supply vaccine.

The service is also urging states and local communities to make specific plans to defend against any major attack by the wily virus invader from the Orient.

The disease has now occurred in nearly every country of the world, at least in outbreak form. It sickened millions for short periods in the Far East, Middle East and some Pacific islands before reaching the United States. So far it has occurred only in sporadic outbreaks in this country.

But the PHS estimates that at least 20,000 to 25,000 persons have been stricken in at least 21 states. The virus is widely "seeded" throughout the nation, and Surgeon Gen. Leroy Burney continues to warn that there is a definite probability of a large-scale epidemic.

Aides to Burney add, however, that the vaccine which has only recently begun to come off production lines, is very important in that, to whatever extent supplies become available before an epidemic strikes, the greater will be the amelioration of any epidemic that occurs.

Letter-Carrier Admits Stealing $18,000 In Cash

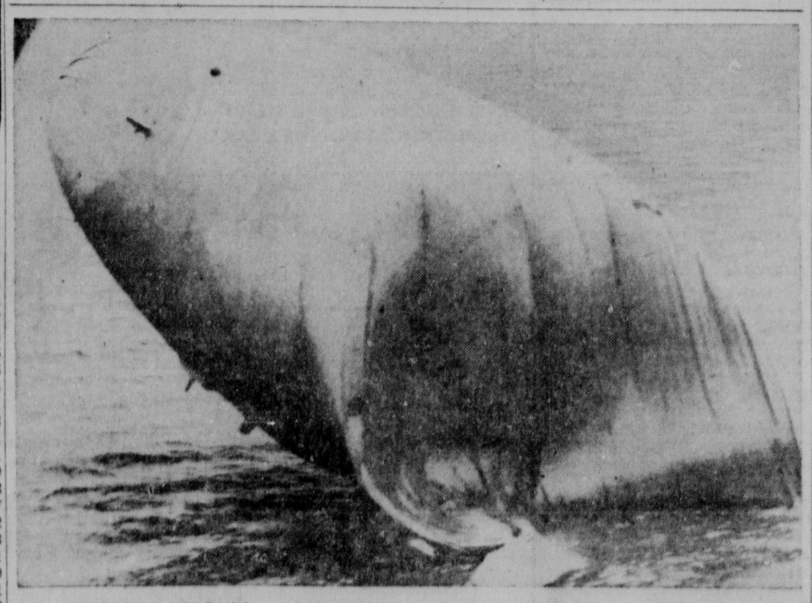

SCOTTSBURG, Ind. (AP) — A 27-year-old letter carrier admitted Saturday he stole $18,000 in cash being sent through the mails from Scottsburg to Louisville, Ky.

Postal Inspector R. L Ochsenhirt of Louisville said Max Leroy Ruehl, a Scottsburg mail carrier for five years, was picked up because of his "personal background, a sudden trip and a report from a fellow employe."

Ruehl led postal officials to a woods nine miles east of Scottsburg, where they dug up $17,600. Ruehl said he had spent the other $400 on a trip to Missouri and Arkansas.

The father of two small children said he picked up the package of money in the Scottsburg post office, placed it under his raincoat and walked out to his car. He said he took the package because he was "pressed financially and wanted money to travel."

The money was mailed Aug. 5 by the Scottsburg County Bank to the Federal Reserve Bank in Louisville.

Four Air Officers Die As Bomber Crashes Into Residential Area

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A twin-engine bomber came in at telephone pole level Saturday and smashed into three houses in a quiet residential section, killing all four officers aboard.

No one on the ground was injured although tales of narrow escapes were many. Two girls sleeping on a porch were covered with debris and a bed on which a two year old boy was lying was cut in two.

The B25 bomber, based at Vance Air Force Base, Enid, Okla., had been cleared for landing at the Palm Beach Air Force Base, about half a mile from the scene of the crash.

Officials sai dthe pilot, who was on a training flight, had not reported any trouble. There was no immediate explanation for the 3 a.m. crash.

Mrs. Charles Armstrong, who lives across the street from the houses damaged by the crash, said she heard a plane that appeared to be in trouble and looked out her bedroom window to see what resembled a ball of fire in the air.

She screamed in terror and she and her husband clung to each other in panic as a tremendous crash resounded.

The 15 residents in the homes hit by the plane were roused first by the sound of engines and the cracking of telephone poles. The big airplane snapped several poles before it smashed into the dwellings.

Eileen and Susan Rothschild, 13 and 8, the daughters of M. Sgt. Robert Rothschild, were buried in debris as they lay sleeping but were pulled out unhurt.

Two-year-old Russell Lamb, son of Air Force Lt. Henry Lamb, also was uninjured although his bed was sliced in two. Mrs. Lamb, who was expecting a second child went into labor and had to be hurried to a hospital. She gave birth later to an 8 lb. 15 oz. boy.

Strikers Reject Offers By Boston News Publishers

BOSTON (AP) — Striking mailers Monday night rejected a $10.50 weekly wage package submitted by the Boston daily newspaper publishers here as a final offer to end the city's nine-day news blackout.

Max Milstein, business agent of Mailers Local No. 16, told newsmen after a seven-hour State House conference: "We're going to continue the strike." He did not elaborate.

The mailers' current wage is $94.13 a week. They asked an immediate increase of $8 with a wage reopening next year. The publishers' offer would have given them $7 immediately—$4.50 of it retroactively to Jan. 1—and $3.25 more next Jan. 1.

The six affected daily newspapers—Morning Globe, Herald and Record and afternoon American, Globe and Traveler—have not published since a week ago Friday.

Also affected are the Sunday Globe, Sunday Herald and Sunday Advertiser.

Some 5,000 nonstriking employes have been idled by the strike.

OLD IRON HORSE COMES TO RESCUE

LONDON (AP)—It had to happen some day on London's complex network of electrified and old-fashioned steam train tracks.

Men in the control towers along London's southern approaches were routing trains all over the place Saturday to clear a blockade caused by a locomotive breakdown.

When everything seemed to be going smoothly, one worried little engineer climbed down from his train a few miles out of town and phoned back the news: his electric train had been switched onto a steam line and just couldn't move.

Embarrassed railroad men rushed an old-fashioned locomotive down the line.

Probers To Hear Two Teamster Big Shots This Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) said Saturday that two Teamster big shots, James R. Hoffa and Einar O. Mohn, will be the principal witnesses in the climax this week of an investigation of labor racketeering in New York.

Hoffa is the Midwest leader of the giant Teamsters Union and the front-running candidate to succeed Dave Beck as president at the union convention in Miami Sept. 30. Mohn is executive vice president and Beck's right-hand man.

Both have been linked, in testimony before the special Senate Rackets Committee, to charters issued for phony, gangster-dominated locals of the Teamsters Union in the New York City area.

McClellan, the committee chairman, said Mohn has been called to testify Monday afternoon when the hearings are resumed. Hoffa is scheduled to take the witness chair Tuesday.

Also to be heard Monday, ahead of Mohn, is another witness whom McClellan calls "important." The senator declined to identify this witness in advance.

McClellan said the committee plans to wind up its current series of hearings on New York labor rackets in midweek and then take a recess for three weeks or so. He said hearings might be resumed about Sept. 20 but declined to say what they would deal with.

Airliner With Blownout Tire Lands Safely

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — United Air Lines Flight 7803 from New York landed safely here at 3:35 p.m. Saturday before a large crowd had gathered to watch the big plane come in with a blownout tire.

After the plane landed it ran to the end of runway, then taxied back up to the strip where three fire engines, three carloads of policemen and a busload of newsmen waited.

The plane, arriving nonstop from New York, came down smoothly on a runway lined with fire-fighting equipment which had been ready since tire fragments had been discovered Saturday morning after it took off from the Idlewild Airport, New York.

The pilot, Capt. Clyde Parlett, 53, San Carols, Calif., told by radio that pieces of a burst tire and tube had been found on the runway after he left Idlewild, replied that he had noticed nothing unusual about the takeoff.

The planes have double wheels under each wing, and a nose wheel.

Their condition cannot be checked in flight.

The plane carried 56 passengers and a crew of five.

An operator in the San Francisco airport control tower, before the plane got in, described the anticipated landing as "a routine emergency operation." He said "a ticklish situation" might develop if the other left tire didn't hold up on landing.

Officials Think Disarmament Talks Need Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top U. S. officials have decided that Western negotiations with Russia on disarmament need a shot in the arm.

This foreshadows one or more moves by the United States and allied governments in the London disarmament conference within the next week or so.

Officials, who declined to forecast the nature of these moves precisely, said cautiously Saturday that certainly some movement is to be expected in the Western position prior to a recess of the negotiations.

One project on which the United States, Britain, France and Canada are now working hard is a comprehensive statement of the whole range of Western disarmament proposals that has been partially spelled out by U. S. negotiator Harold Stassen during the past two months.

Stassen has been hampered by allied disagreements which have slowed the pace of his operation and brought a steady drumfire of complaint from the Russians.

The completed allied statement seems certain to contain for the first time a definite proposal on cutting off the manufacture of atomic armaments as part of a first step disarmament treaty. The United States and its allies may dramatize their offer on this issue to get across to the world their argument that some progress has been made in the London talks and that the talks are well worth continuing.

Saudi Cuts Off Oil Shipments To Egypt Sept. 1

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Saudi Arabia is reported annoyed at Egypt's Nasser regime and is cutting off oil shipments to the Nile republic.

Reliable informants said Saudi Arabia, which rallied to Egypt's support in last fall's crisis over Suez, has suspended oil shipments effective Sept. 1.

Saudi Arabia agreed to supply Egypt with oil for Egyptian pounds, taking dollars out of her own accounts to pay Aramco, the American oil companies whose royalties enrich King Saud's treasury. At the time Egypt was hard-pressed financially by the freezing of her own assets in Britain, France and the United States.

The Egyptians, it is reported, will have received 320,000 tons of oil worth 20 million dollars from the Saudi Arabians by Sept. 1. The Egyptians had asked for one million tons.

But the Saudi Arabians are reported to be having financial problems of their own now. Dollars, heretofore plentiful with them, are getting scarcer, the informants reported.

AFTER BREAKFAST—President Eisenhower and Senate Minority Leader William Knowland were all smiles as they left the White House after a special breakfast meeting. Though the President suffered one of the worst defeats of his Administration when the House slashed over eight hundred million dollars from his foreign aid program, the Chief Executive won Senate Democratic support to restore some of the cut. Ike Sends Top Aides To Capitol Hill In Foreign Funds Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower is sending a team of three top officials for a last-ditch appeal to the Senate for an increase in foreign aid funds.

But unless all the signs are wrong, Secretary of State Dulles, Adm. Arthur W. Radford and John Hollister are likely to have little success.

Dulles is expected to ask the Senate Appropriations Committee at a closed-door session Monday to boost up to the legal ceiling of $3,367,000,000 the mutual security cash allowance shriveled to $2,524,000,000 by a House vote earlier in the week.

Hollister, the retiring director of the International Cooperation Administration, will back up his plea.

Radford, retiring chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will argue for increases in military assistance and defense support.

With Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) leading the fight, Senate Republicans will seek to wipe out some of the House cuts. But they have almost no hope of restoring the full amount sought by Eisenhower.

This situation was attributed in part to congressional resentment at Eisenhower's implied threat to call a special session this fall if he does not get the maximum appropriation that can be made.

Another factor working against any fullscale restoration of funds was the apparent lack of grass roots support for the President's appeal. Several senators said their mail continues to urge reductions in foreign aid spending.

The existence of something around seven billion dollars is carryover foreign aid funds—voted by previous congresses—offered a third hurdle to the Presi-

Congressmen Get Far-Away Look, Hope For Junket

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen are beginning to get a far-away look in their eyes now that adjournment day is near, and that look isn't just towards the old homestead.

Put your finger on almost any point in the United States, or many places around the globe, and you'll find some congressman has passed by between now and the time Congress goes back to work in January.

But 1957 may not see as much overseas travel as 1955, the last non-election year, when a record of more than 200 U. S. legislators were counted abroad.

Mindful of criticism of what congressmen themselves call "junkets," House leaders so far are officially allowing only four of the 19 House committees to inspect things in other lands at taxpayers' expense.

That still leaves a fair amount of ground to cover within the United States and its terriories. Public Works Committee members

Airman Says Son Has Right To Be American Citizen

PARIS (AP)—A U.S. Air Force sergeant, who says his family traces its American history back to 1725, angrily insisted Saturday that his four-months-old son, a baby without a country, has the right to be an American citizen by birth.

But William J. D. Lewis, 25, and his 23-year-old English wife said they didn't know where they could turn for help. Their son already has been denied citizenship by three nations.

The baby, Anthony J. D. Lewis, was born in France. When Lewis took him to the American Embassy in Paris to have his son registered, he was told the baby could not be an American citizen because Lewis had not lived 10 years in the United States.

Under U. S. citizenship laws, an American who has married an alien must have lived in the U. S. that length of time before the birth of a child if he wants that child to be a citizen.

Britain and France also have refused the infant citizenship. English citizenship can not be transmitted by the mother, and the French insist that the child must be registered as a French citizen shortly after birth.

Sgt. Lewis, who was born in Germany of an American father, and an English mother, went to the United States at 17 to enlist in the Air Force. He lived 2½ years here and has been on duty near Paris for the last 5½ years. His duty here counts as U. S. residence, but 8 years is not enough.

Lewis, whose legal residence is Englewood, N. J., wrote to New Jersey Sen. H. Alexander Smith about the problem.

Mrs. Lewis said the senator replied that no private bill could pass in Congress as long as the child could be naturalized. He said he would bring it to the attention of the state department.

"His answer wasn't an answer at all," Mrs. Lewis said. "It was a blank wall."

There is one clear solution to the problem: If Mrs. Lewis is naturalized as an American citizen before her son reaches 16, he will be an American by birth.

"If I become nationalized, I'll do it for myself, not just for my son." Mrs. Lewis declared. "I don't want to sign away my British nationality before I've ever seen America. It's not fair."

The sergeant said he has told his Air Force superiors about the problem but as yet has received no official word.

He said his tour of duty ends next March but he will apply for an extension to go to England, where his mother and his wife's parents live.

Fight For 'Adequate' Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a conference with President Eisenhower, Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., announced Saturday he has a secret civil rights proposal and said Republicans would fight for an "adequate" bill.

Declining to describe the proposal now or tip off strategy, the House Republican leader said:

"I think a lot of Democrats will vote with us when they see our proposal. Some of them will think twice before they vote against us."

Although word Friday from some Republican leaders indicated that a compromise was as good as wrapped up, there appeared to be a stiffening attitude today in at least some sectors of the GOP camp.

After breakfasting at the White House, Martin returned to the Capitol to declare the President's position is unchanged and he still is not in favor of the terms of a compromise being pushed by a number of House Democrats.

'No Weakening'

"Let me make it crystal clear," Martin said. "There is no weakening in our position. We want a bill as first proposed by President Eisenhower that will adequately protect the voting rights of millions of our citizens."

Although the administration has stated that voting rights protection is its main aim, this bill as introduced and passed by the House went far beyond that field.

It would permit the attorney general to apply for federal court injunctions against alleged violations of all kinds of civil rights. Persons disregarding the injunctions could be jailed for contempt by federal judges without jury trials.

Added Jury Trials

The Senate cut down the injunction provision to voting rights. Then it added that jury trials must be granted in most criminal contempt cases. This jury trial requirement would apply, not just to voting rights disputes, but also to

Pole, Son Seek U.S. Asylum; Wife Returns To Reds

LONDON (AP) — A young Polish diploma and his 3-year-old son Saturday night awaited passage to a new life in the United States while his angry wife stormed back behind the Iron Curtain with their baby daughter.

The diplomat, Mieczyslaw Reluga, and his son, Richard, were granted a sylum in Britain. Reluga, 26, a handsome 6-footer, went into hiding here while Polish refugee leaders arranged the American passage.

But Mrs. Reluga, a pretty blonde, was described by the refugees as a staunch Communist who didn't mind spying on her own husband for the sake of the party. She wanted nothing to do with the escape plan, took 2-year-old Margaretta, and fled back to Red Poland.

"He has relatives somewhere in America," explained a refugee leader. "We are sending him over there as soon as he can get a passage."

Ward's New President, Barr, Making Drastic Changes

CHICAGO (AP) — A soft-spoken, low pressure executive is making drastic changes and lots of news at Montgomery Ward & Co.

He's John A. Barr, now 48, who became chairman and president of the country's oldest and second largest mail order house two years ago. Controversial, 83-year-old Sewell L. Avery resigned from the job as the aftermath of a hard proxy fight.

Changes in Ward's operation have been coming thick and fast, particularly in recent weeks.

It would be difficult to find two more contrasting personalities than the affable Barr and the austere Avery.

Avery took over Ward's in 1931, when it was headed for the rocks in the big depression. He brought it through in good shape and with a sizable surplus. But afterward he resisted changes or expansion, voicing fears of another depression. In 1955 the firm had fewer stores than at the end of World War II.

Barr last June 25 bought the Fair Store, big State Street department store, and its three suburban stores for $7,632,500. The next day, he announced also an 84 - million-dollar expansion plan for the next five years, to include opening of new retail stores, rehabilitation of about 200 others, and opening of about 30 new catalogue stores this year.

He approved four large new retail outlets last year in shopping centers in Detroit, Kansas City and Gary, Ind.

Does he hope to catch up with Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's biggest mail order firm?

Barr asserted he is interested only in growth and profits of Ward's. "Ward's is large, and Ward's will become larger."

The annual report for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31 listed surplus of about 198 million dollars.

Avery ran a one-man show at the big firm and during his tenure four presidents and about 40 vice presidents and other key personnel were forced out in disagreements with the chief.

Barr by contrast has delegated authority widely all the way down the line. Recently he brought in Paul M. Hammaker, senior vice president of Marshall Field & Co., and made him executive vice president and general manager.

Hammaker will be in charge of merchandising and operating functions. This releases Barr to head financial, legal, personnel and public relations activities. However, vice presidents in various fields will report to Hammaker, who will report to Barr.

In a recent talk to Ward personnel at an organization meeting, Barr acknowledged that "a remarkable job" was done by Avery in maintaining profits during the depression. But he added: "It is now apparent that considerable violence was done to the organization and to the long-term interests of the business."

He said that in the operation of chain retail stores "decentralization is not new."

"Lack of uniformity in customer preferences from city to city, varied climates, difference in competitive conditions, and the importance of merchandise turnover have caused many of our competitors to delegate more authority to their store, district and regional managers than we have done here at Ward's."

The door of Barr's big, wood-paneled office on the top floor of the administration building at Ward's always is open to department heads. This is another new trend.

Barr's methods apparently are successful. Sales in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31 were $1,045,767,458, and net profit was $35,844,479, or $2.65 per common share. In the last full year of the preceding regime, the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1955, sales were $887,336,812, and net profit was $35,232,600, or $2.60 a share.

Barr is an Indiana farm boy who came to the big mail order house as an attorney in 1932. He was secretary and vice president at the time Avery stepped down.

In Berlin One Street Separates Plenty From Want, Freedom From Communism

BERLIN (AP)—In divided Berlin, the people live the answer to Nikita Khrushchev's tales that capitalism depraves and communism pays.

For nine years communism has ruled East Berlin and competed with freedom in West Berlin. To three million Berliners the score between East and West is easy to read.

Begin, if you will, on Bernauer Strasse, a commonplace tenement street where worker families live.

It is a sunny August morning. A middle-aged housewife in a shoddy cotton dress stands on the East sidewalk. She stares at the fruit stand on the West sidewalk where another woman is buying a pound of cherries.

The housewife's eyes shift to the green-uniformed policeman posted nearby. Then she shakes her head and slowly trudges away.

Just a pound of cherries. But to men and women on Bernauer Strasse it is the difference between two worlds.

The Iron Curtain that divides Soviet-run East Berlin from Allied-occupied West Berlin runs down the middle of Bernauer Strasse.

On the West side of the street, there are shining toys, refrigerators, pretty dresses, TV sets — more smiles and less fear. No one anwers the door at midnight to find the green-uniformed people's police standing there.

From this street extend the two Berlins East and West in eye-stunning contrast.

Out of the bomb rubble of World War II and in defiance of encircling Russian armies, West Berlin has flowered into one of Europe's queen cities, shielded by an American-British-French garrison.

West Berlin's 2,200,000 citizens eat well and dress well. Their tight housing problem is being solved at the rate of 20,000 new family accommodations a year.

Towering apartment houses, modern office buildings and new homes have replaced nightmarish ruins like those that still scar East Berlin.

The city's gracious boulevards throb with the flow of sleek, gleaming cars.

The broad, neon-splashed Kurfurstendamm, with its theaters, fashionable shops and parade of beautiful women, ranks with Paris' Champs Elysee and London's Regent Street.

The glitter seems to dim only when some shabby East German refugee family trudges by the posh sidewalk cafes. More than a million of these refugees from Communist poverty have passed through West Berlin. They keep coming at the rate of about 400 a day. East Berlin's population is down to 1,100,000.

Thousands of Americans now make West Berlin a regular point of call on the European tourist circuit.

Because the city is isolated, its recovery drive has lagged behind the phenomenal pace set by West Germany. West Berlin's traffic with the free world moves by air and over a 110-mile rail and highway link to West Germany, subject to Communist inspection.

At night West Berlin is a sea of bright lights that abruptly dissipates into gloom at the East Berlin border.

With the first glance at the desolation of East Berlin, visitors ask: "But where are all the people?" Nobody seems to have an answer.

There is only a thin stream of weary pedestrians plodding by rows of bomb-shattered buildings.

At Alexander Platz, once a smart shopping center, now the HO (government) stores stand line on line, their windows showing the same shoddy goods.

An East-West shopping survey showed East Berlin women can buy their clothes cheaper in West Berlin, although their money there is worth only a fourth of its face value. Many East Berliners go to the West to buy, running the risk that their illegal purchases will be confiscated by Communist border guards on their return.

Amid the acres of bomb rubble extending through East Berlin, there remains untouched the grotesque ruins of the airraid bunker where Hitler and his bride Eva Braun died.

In its way just as grotesque is Stalin Allee. This is the prize exhibit, the gift of the late Russian dictator.

It is a mile-long stretch of broad boulevard lined with Moscow-style apartment houses. The square sameness of the apartment houses occupied by Communist activists, give them a cold barracks look.

Behind the thin facade of Stalin Allee, families of four or more live jammed into single rooms of bomb-amputated buildings. The modest reconstruction program has expended itself more on patching than on building worker apartment houses.

A Communist official explains: "We are short of structural steel." But nobody explains why trains keep rolling East from East German factories carrying finished steel products to Russia and other Communist bloc nations.

In a writer's club, one of the restive East Berlin intellectuals complains: "It's the monotony, more than anything else.

"Your tie is like the one the man at the next table has on. The newspapers are alike, dull. In the cinema, it's the same kind of propaganda movie—German, Russian or Chinese. . . .

'I Love Lucy' Played Its Last TV Performance On June 24

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was back on Oct. 15, 1951 that a television show named "I Love Lucy" hit the air for the first time. It played its last performance Monday night, June 24, this year.

Thus ended the greatest success story in television history.

For six full season, the Lucille Ball-Dezi Arnaz show took the No. 1 spot in virtually every audience poll, bowing only a handful of times to the $64,000 question and Ed Sullivan. NBC has thrown nearly everything possible against CBS's "Lucy," but never could make a dent on the ratings.

Now Lucy and Desi are quitting their weekly show.

Stars have been known to quit at the top in sports, but almost never in show business.

"Lucy and I are not quitting like Rocky Marcino and Gene Tunney," Desi explained. "We just aren't going to fight every Monday night. We'll fight five times a year."

For the 1957-58 season, they are making six one-hour shows. They will still be Lucy and Ricky Ricardo, and Vivian Vance and Bill Frawley will play Ethel and Fred Mertz. The shows begin in late October or early November.

But the stories will be broadened to fit the one-hour scope with more musical numbers and guest stars. The first show also stars Ann Sothern, Rudy Vallee, Cesar Romero and Hedda Hopper.

Why are they vacating their golden half-hour on Monday night? Desi remarked:

"Because we'd had it. After 180 shows, we ran out of new things to do. We always tried to keep topping ourselves — getting out of the apartment, going new places, bringing in new guest stars — anything that would keep the audience wondering that we would do next. We found ourselves getting short of ideas."

Desi said the new schedule does not mean a slowdown in work for the stars.

"Each show is the equivalent of a feature-length movie," he said. "I'm working harder on them than I did before."

Desi said he wanted to make the move to the hour show a year ago, but his sponsors prevailed upon him to stay on Monday night another season. This year he won, despite network pressure and sponsor coolness to his $330,000 price tag per how.

In preparation for the opening of school all of the school buildings have been checked during the summer and some remodeling done. The major improvement was made in the Eldred cafeteria where a ceiling has been put in, new lights installed and the room painted. Some painting has also been done at the Carrollton grade and also at the high school. John Sappington, high school industrial arts teacher is finishing a new trophy case in the corridor in front of the gym at the high school and the high school trophies will soon be moved from the grade school.

To date only 40 pupils have enrolled for kindergarten in Carrollton and as a result only one teacher has been employed and a maximum of 50 pupils is all that can be handled. Pupils entering the first grade must be six years old before Dec. 1 and if they have not been in kindergarten they must submit a birth certificate when they enter. All first graders must also have a physical examination. Children whose names begin with the first letters of the alphabet will go to Miss Pegrams room and those whose names begin with the last letters will go to Miss Rutledge. Book rentals in the grade school will vary from $5.50 to $8 depending upon the grade.

High school book rentals will depend upon the course taken by the student and will include a $3.00 fee for physical education which covers the cost of laundry service on towels supplied by the school. All pupils in both grade and high school will be expected to pay rental fees when they get their books except where arrangements for delayed payments are made beforehand with the building principals. Textbooks for grade school children will be available in the rooms on the first day of school and high school students may secure their books and locker any time from Aug. 19 at the high school office.

District Ten Prepares For School Opening

PITTSFIELD — All schools in Pittsfield Community District No. 10 comprised of the Pittsfield, Nebo, Milton, Pearl, Rockport, Baylis, New Salem, Detroit, Time, Summer Hill, Toll Gate and Martinsburg schools, will begin the fall term on Thursday, August 29.

A meeting of all the teachers in the district for the 1957-58 school year will be held in the Pittsfield high school auditorium on Wednesday morning to make plans for the opening of school. On Friday all teachers in the city and village schools in the unit will meet with their principals. The first day of school (August 29) will be held on the morning only, for the purpose of registration, assignments, distribution of text books, etc. The schools will then be closed to open for the term on September 3 following Labor Day.

All text books in grades one through eight in the unit are on rental basis, and may be rented from the school for about one fourth of the retail price when purchased through book stores. No profit is made from the rental of books. Three additional rural schools in the district have been closed, New Hartford, Rose Hill and Independence. Students will be transported to other centers. From a total of 59 one and two-room rural schools there remains in operation only three two-room schools and two one-room schools in the unit.

Last year only one street leading to the new high school was open for traffic. This year there will be six streets open. Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Illinois, Higbee and the new street leading from Piper Lane on the east. The city has built the roads and will maintain them through State Motor Fuel tax. An outside lighting system has been installed at the high school and an additional sidewalk across the north side has been built.

The best transportation possible has been arranged for residents of the unit, all school busses were repaired and rehabilitated by the Board during the summer at a considerable cost. Twenty-seven bus drivers will operate the transportation system this year.

All school buildings have also been rehabilitated during the summer and are in fine condition for the opening of schools. Seventeen janitors are employed in the district, and four maintenance men, who are employed by the Board throughout the year.

It should be a good year for the Pittsfield Community School District No. 10.

Jefferson-Hiatt Nuptials Solemnized At Patterson

PATTERSON — The Wilmington Baptist Church in Patterson was the scene of a summer wedding Sunday afternoon, August 11th., uniting in marriage Miss Esther Hiatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hiatt, who live north of Patterson, and Harold Jefferson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Jefferson, of near Alsey.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Albert Monroe, of White Hall, amid decorations of white gladioli and palms.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a white waltz length dress of Chantilly lace, over taffeta. The bodice, accented by the princess lines of her dress, featured a sweetheart neckline, draped in white chiffon. The neckline formed a V in the back, and from the center long tapers flowed down the back of the dress.

Her fingertip veil of organza was attached by criss-cross strands forming the bride's cap of seed pearls and sequins. Her only jewelry was a white gold watch, given her by the groom to match her rings.

Her bouquet was fashioned of stephanotis, centered with a white orchid.

Miss Betty Jefferson, sister of the groom, served as bridesmaid and James Hiatt, brother of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were, Keith and Roger Jefferson, brothers of the groom.

Mrs. Ruby Bowman, soloist, sang, "Always" and "Because," accompanied at the Piano by Mrs. Ruth Shive.

The bride's mother chose a navy blue lace dress with white accessories and the groom's mother wore pink dacron with matching hat and white accessories. Both wore a white carnation corsage.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, with guests from Roodhouse, Manchester, Bluffs, Alsey and White Hall.

The couple cut the three tiered wedding cake which was served with fruit punch, nuts and mints. Assisting with the serving were, Mrs. Carmeline Pinkerton and Mrs. Lee Hartline, aunts of the bride, and Mrs. Virginia Doss, aunt of the groom.

The bride wore a white linen suit and the orchid from her bouquet, for her going away trip. The couple will make their home in Alsey.

Father J. J. Clancy In Priesthood 66 Years

By ARTHUR THATCHER

JERSEYVILLE — A record was set locally among pastors of Jerseyville churches Thursday when the Reverend Father John J. Clancy marked the sixty-sixth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

Father Clancy, who has spent 42 years as pastor of St. Francis Xavier's Church in Jerseyville, was Celebrant of the six o'clock Mass on his anniversary date, which was also the Feast of the Assumption, and crowds of his parishioners received Communion from him and offered the Sacrament for his continued good health.

Father Clancy personally discharges the duties of his church which numbers approximately 300 families in its congregation, and he also supervises the parochial elementary school.

He was ordained to the priesthood August 15, 1891 by the late Right Reverend James Ryan, Bishop of the Alton diocese, and was appointed pastor of the Sacred Heart Church at Dalton City, Ill., serving as its first resident pastor. He remained there until Feb. 1, 1894 when he was appointed to the pastorate of St. Catherine Church at Virden, remaining there over five years. On Sept. 1, 1899 he became pastor of St. James Church at Riverton where he served until his assignment to St. Francis Xavier's Church in Jerseyville in October, 1914. During his long tenure in the city he has won the admiration and respect of the citizens of the community and has countless friends among both Catholics and Protestants.

A native of Ireland, Father Clancy received his early education in that country and came to the United States with a relative in 1899. He began his studies at Cardow University in Ireland, and continued preparation for the priesthood at St. Viator's College in Kankakee.

He studied Philosophy in the seminary of Our Lady of Angels in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Arcadia Woman's Club To Make Membership Quilt

Mrs. Harold Rolf was hostess to the Arcadia Woman's Club on Wednesday, Aug. 14, at the Arcadia hall.

The president, Mrs. Harold McGinnis, opened the meeting with the group singing "The More We Get Together," followed by all repeating the pledge.

Roll call was answered by 19 members present, telling their "Favorite Handicraft." Many displayed beautiful hand made articles, which included quilts, rugs, doilies and a crochet bed spread. Mrs. Irland Thompson led the devotions, reading the 23rd Psalm and a poem, "Vacation Recipe," closing with the "Lord's Prayer."

The secretary read several "Thank you notes" for flowers the club had sent. The club collect was read in unison.

During the business meeting the committees for the 28th annual "Arcadia Burgoo" were read. Plans are in order for the Brugoo which will be held on Thursday, Aug. 29th in Arcadia. Delinquent dues were discussed by the club members, as some members have become too lax about paying them.

Mrs. Thomas Parlier displayed her "Membership Quilt" during the handicraft showing, along with a "Grandmother Flower Garden Quilt." The Membership Quilt, made many years ago by the club, aroused a great interest among the newer members and so the club voted to make quilt blocks and bring to the winter meetings until each member participating has a quilt block made by each member. The center of the block will have a club member's name embroidered on it. When all of the blocks are obtained, each member will assemble her own membership quilt, adding one with the club's name, her own name and the date. The pattern for the quilt will be decided at the September meeting.

The program was led by Mrs. Allan Henderson and Mrs. Wilson Henderson. Each read articles on "Your Individual Art." It brought out that everyone can do something special if we make the little effort it takes.

The hostess served a mixed jello salad on lettuce with tasty crackers, mints, nuts, and iced tea.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, September 2 at the Arcadia hall. Mrs. Charles Clark will be the hostess.

ALL GRAINS EXCEPT CORN RESPOND TO BULL MARKETS

CHICAGO (AP)—One of the best bull markets in some time pushed almost all grains but corn into higher ground on the Board of Trade this week.

The biggest gains came at the start of the week, on buying attracted by the government's crop forecast. There was a three-day lull, and then the market closed the week with another upward bound. Only corn was heavy, and oats showed little change as has been the rule recently.

New style wheat closed Friday 3 to 4⅞ cents higher than the previous Friday. Corn was 1¼ to 4⅝ cents lower, oats ½ higher to ¼ lower, rye 3 to 3¼ higher, soybeans 3 to 5⅝ higher, and lard 35 to 67 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Wheat climbed about three cents Monday because of the government's forecast for winter wheat production of about 915 million bushels, down 82 million from last year's crop.

Extreme strength in soybean meal, which hit the highest price in more than a year at $55.50 in the cash market, lent strength to the September soybean contract.

The corn picture currently is somewhat dismal, although unfavorable weather still could make the crop susceptible to frost damage which might possibly reduce the yield and make some of the corn unstorable.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, (AP)—The stock market gave ground again this week, but showed signs of trying to halt its late summer decline.

Prices dropped sharply on two days, battering down the overall averages for the week. Then the market was steady in the last two sessions, which led some brokers to believe that the climax in the current downtrend had been reached.

There were some who suggested that the turning point came in a sharp sell-off near the close Wednesday when the high-speed ticker tape ran behind in reporting transactions for the first time in a month. A large segment of the financial community took a "wait and see" attitude, however.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost $3 on the week at $176.30, compared with a drop of $3.40 the week before. Actually, the average was a shade higher on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, but plunged the other days.

Trading was quiet, with the exception of the wave of heavy selling on Wednesday. Daily turnover amounted to an average 1,760,068 shares, compared with 1,884,459 the previous week.

The five most active stocks on the New York Stock Exchange this week were Bethlehem Steel, off ⅞ at 45¾ on 120,700 shares; Chrysler, up 1¾ at 79¾; Standard Oil (New Jersey), off 2⅛ at 62⅝; General Motors off ¾ at 43⅞, and U.S. Steel off 1½ at 66¾.

U.S. Gets Set To Fight Asiatic Flu

So far in this country there have been relatively few cases plagued by complications, and only four reported deaths.

The death rate in countries where the disease has been epidemic has also been very low—about two-tenths of one per cent on the average.

The PHS believes it will remain that way in this country even if an epidemic occurs. In fact, the surgeon general is confident the death rate would be "far below" that in Asia, small as that was.

But the service also cautions there is no guarantee the disease won't change to a more virulent form. And the latter could happen, says Burney, if the virus suddenly underwent a mutational — genetic — change or developed a distinct proneness to pick up bacterial hitchhikers that could complicate the flu infection itself.

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS

Drunken Drivers In Remote Soviet Area Get Shot

MOSCOW, (AP) — The attorney general of the remote Soviet Republic of Kazakhstan is cracking down on traffic violators — especially drunken drivers. They get shot.

An issue of Kazakhstan Pravda reaching Moscow Saturday indicated the modern problem of highway fatalities has reached even remote Kazakhstan. It reported that one drunken driver was sentenced to execution by firing squad after his car ran through a crowd of pedestrians, killing one and injuring several.

The paper quoted the attorney general as saying drunken driving is the republic's No. 1 traffic problem and that he has ordered the courts to bear down on drivers responsible for accidents.

Until recently, the main form of transport in the Chinese border republic has been by animal.

Hollywood Angry Over Testimony In Scandal Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hollywood indignation over sensational testimony in the criminal libel trial of Confidential Magazine has brought a call to action from actor George Murphy.

Murphy, whose many public appearances about the country have made him filmland's unofficial ambassador of good will, declared: "We've got to set up the machinery to prevent such a thing as this Confidential trial from ever happening again."

Murphy spoke up after a trial witness testified Friday that he ordered actress Maureen O'Hara and an unidentified Latin man out of a Hollywood theater after twice finding them in amorous embraces. Miss O'Hara has denied the story and sued Confidential for a million dollars' damages.

Murphy, president of the Motion Picture Industry Council and director of public relations for MGM studio, proposed establishment of a permanent organization. He said it would hire the "best legal counsel" to expose publication of what he called falsehoods about Hollywood.

The Superior Court trial resumes Monday with testimony by Michael Mordaunt-Smith, Confidential's European correspondent. One of Friday's witnesses, James Craig, testified for the defense that he related the alleged O'Hara incident to Mordaunt-Smith and that the latter wrote the story for the magazine. Craig said he was paid about $200 by Mordaunt-Smith.

Craig, an independent movie producer, flew from London and became the first defense witness.

W. German, Soviet Repatriation Talks Bog Down

MOSCOW (AP)—Repatriation and trade talks between the Soviet Union and West Germany bogged down again Saturday for the second time in a month.

Dr. Rolf Lahr, leader of the West German delegation, was ordered to fly home to Bonn Sunday for consultations. The length of his stay away from Moscow would be determined later, a spokesman said.

But Bonn reports said the latest developments could wreck the talks completely.

Dr. Lahr will meet with West German Foreign Minister Brentano.

The discussions had appeared near the stalling stage after Friday's four-hour meeting. The views of the two countries on the question of German repatriation remained completely opposed at that meeting.

Bonn maintains some 80,000 Germans in the Soviet Union have asked for repatriation. The Soviet government denies that any Germans are held here unwillingly.

This was the second time Lahr was ordered home since the talks started July 23. Trade and consular agreements, in addition to the repatriation problem, were up for discussion.

are thinking of going to Hawaii on a rivers and harbors mission. A government operations subcommittee plans hearings in Portland, Ore., and Juneau, Alaska, on the care of mental patients.

Finding out what foreign tours are in the works is a tough job. Committee spokesmen are inclined to be close-mouthed on this touchy topic.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee, whose legislative tasks most clearly warrant information gathering abroad, is perhaps the least secretive about its proposed travels to foreign lands.

Foreign Affairs subcommittees known as study missions are tentatively ticketed for visits to the Middle East, the Far East, North Africa and, in this hemisphere, Canada and Central and South America. Perhaps half of the 32 committee members will go on one or other of the trips.

Rep. Some members of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee plan to trek to Canada to look into the newsprint situation. This committee recently became the fourth authorized for outside-the-United States travel.

Excursions within the country will be plentiful. An incomplete check turned up tentative plans for an Agriculture Consumer Studies subcommittee hearing in New York, a Housing subcommittee hearings in Western states on extending minimum wage law coverage, Interior subcommittee hearings in the West on public land matters.

Survey Shows Taxpayers Revolting On Local Level

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Writer

The young man in Bermuda shorts and sports shirt and his slacks-clad wife walked slowly out of the high school auditorium, where the school district election was being held.

Heading for their yellow 1957 station wagon, they met another couple, neighbors in their suburban development, on their way to vote.

"We voted against it," said the man in shorts, almost with embarrassment. "This is the second time they've asked for more money for the new high school. It probably doesn't make much sense to refuse them money to finish a half-built school. But we've finally decided we're voting against frills from now on.

"My kids don't need a gymnasium big enough for a Roman chariot race, and I just can't see sinking thousands of dollars into school landscaping and fine lawns — better than we can afford around our own house."

A few hours later, when the vote was counted, the school board learned with some surprise that its request for an extra $225,000 had been turned down by a healthy majority. Six weeks later, the voters returned to the polls and approved a supplementary appropriation — severely pruned to $160,000.

This is no isolated incident of weary taxpayers striking down proposed spending for public improvements. From New York to California, taxpayers are telling local governments at the polls how they feel.

And sensitive public officials are watching these scattered storm centers, wondering if they presage a big economy blow. True most bond issues still are passing. But the percentage turned down seems to be rising steadily in some areas.

This spring, for instance, residents of half a dozen neighboring communities in New York City's dormitory, Long Island, turned out at the polls to vote down resoundingly all except one of a handful of spending proposals.

Into the discard, at least temporarily, went glowing plans for a half-million-dollar swimming pool for one community of small homes. In other similar localities voters vetoed library and recreation budgets, refused funds to acquire another school site, decided against extending school bus service.

A few days earlier residents of a number of Detroit suburbs rejected by ballot a $204,000 swimming pool, a $106,000 library, a $190,000 community center, a new police station. And a whole township indicated it preferred existing potholes in its roads to a tax increase for repairs.

Plans for needed school expansion took a general globbering from California voters this year. In one school district, St. Helena, a fight over a proposal, which would have jumped taxes 45 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation, grew so bitter that a school trustee leading the opposition asked for — and received — police protection after telephone threats. The proposal was defeated, for the fourth time.

"With 36 per cent of income going for taxes the voter is in no mood to approve bond issues," said Sheffield J. Arnold, general manager of the California Taxpayers Assn. "He strikes back wherever he can. Witness the spontaneous reaction against proposed bond issue here in southern California. No, this definitely isn't a product of organized taxpayer groups."

A Springfield, Mo., city councilman felt much the same way after voters in his city turned down — for the second time in a year — a $645,000 bond issue to improve police and fire facilities.

"It was a nameless sort of thing, a sort of sullen resentment against government in general," said Stanley Roush. "Over-all, taxes have become such a burden that people seem to want to strike out any way they can to stop them."

Regularly organized taxpayer groups, who year in, year out complain and propagandize against climbing government spending at all levels can't take much credit for the turn of events. They sense a general stiffening of attitudes in villages, towns and special school and sewer districts.

There are, unfortunately, no statistics anywhere which reflect accurately what is going on at this grass root level which consists of more than 100,000 units of local government.

Nor is there any central clearing house of information. But politicians are very conscious of the demand for belt-tightening and hole-plugging in public expenditures.

Not only are voters expressing themselves by ballot, but they are turning out for public hearings involving taxes.

"In the old days," said a Wyoming official, "we could have held budget meetings in a telephone booth. Today we have to crowd into a hall."

And voters today are sternly demanding everything from cheeseparing to total abandonment of projects.

Voters' wrath has not been loosed solely on school projects, but they have caught a lot of it because the whole nation is woefully short of classroom space.

The emphasis on schools is particularly strong in areas which have mushroomed in population since World War II. Many of these new-home owners who participated in the flight to the suburbs never though much about property and school taxes when they paid their rent money to city landlords. Today, confronted with the bill, they are suddenly and painfully aware of the bite.

Ousted Syrian AttacheReturning To DefendHimself

ROME (AP)—Ousted Syrian military attache Ibrahim Husseiny, said Saturday he is returning to Syria even though his life may be in danger there. He is accused of plotting with the United States to overthrow his government.

The launching of the plot charges has been assessed by some observers as an effort of a Syrian leftist group to clinch control of the country.

"I have decided to go back and defend myself," the square-jawed colonel said. "I have absolute faith in Syrian justice."

He said he had received word only Saturday that he had been fired from his post in the Syrian embassy here.

The recall order, he said, did not give any details of the charge against him. But he denied once more he had anything to do with the alleged American-backed plot.

Husseiny said that he has proof he was in Rome on the day the Syrian government alleges he was in Syria plotting against the regime.

Husseiny, termed as "ridiculous and impossible" the accusation that he collaborated with an American and ex-dictator Col. Adib Shishekly to oust President Shukri Kuwatly. Shishekly was sentenced in absentia by a Syrian court last February to life imprisonment on charges of leading a subversive group.

Sen. Mansfield of Montana, the acting Democratic leader, said he doubts the senate committee will vote to restore more than 300 million dollars of the $809,650,000 the house sawed off Eisenhower's "minimum" request.

Sheriff's Men Hunt 'Ghost' In Rest Haven, In Will County

WILMINGTON, Ill. (AP)—Townsfolk in Wilmington cast wary glances Saturday toward Rest Haven, four miles distant, and mumbled that myriad mysterious noises and suddenly floating objects were the work of a witch.

Talk of "ghosts" was started by Mrs. James Mikulecky, who told of soap hurtling from the bathroom wall, plaques dropping from walls, magazines sliding from an end table.

Deputy Sheriff Chester Moberly of Will County investigated and Saturday he said:

"There are some mighty strange things going on out there. Folks are really scared. I think I know who's responsible, but I can't say."

Moberly indicated he did not think that these mysterious occurrences were being done as a prank.

Reconstructing events of the last week, Moberly said that when objects began flying about without explanation the Mikuleckys and their granddaughter, Susan Wall, 15, went over to a neighbor's home "Thinking that whatever it was would follow them and not come back."

"But the same thing happened at the neighbor's house," he reported. "Then they went to a furnished house that was unoccupied and sure enough it happened again. That's when they called us."

Moberly said the happenings ruffled the calm of the resort-like area enough so that one resident immediately packed up and returned to his Chicago home.

"Others are pretty scared out there," Moberly said, "and I guess more of them will take off."

Rest Haven, a community of some 300 homes four miles south of Wilmington, draws many summer residents from Chicago, about 50 miles northeast.

The last unexplained action occurred Thursday night. That was when sounds were heard of a saw against metal and several persons said they witnessed a bed vibrating as though a saw was cutting it.

Moberly agreed he didn't find a satisfactory answer to the apparently free movement of the lifeless objects.

Nor could a scientist who was questioned about the incidents.

Russell Fisher, chairman of the Northwestern University physics department, who said he doubted the validity of the Rest Haven stories, "There are phenomena that people regard as ghostly that have a physical explanation, but I know of no explanation for these things."

Triple Murder, Suicide Is Story Of Debt, Tragedy

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. A threat of death hung over a Ft. Carson soldier and his family for six weeks before tragedy struck, it was learned Saturday.

Police continued their investigation into the triple murder and suicide of Sgt. Leo Dandoy, 41; his wife, Magdalena, 34, and their sons, Danny, 11, and Edralin, 10, and the debt-tangled affairs of the family. Their bodies, one bullet wound in the head of each, were found Thursday.

From notes left by the woman and the position of a pistol near her body, police concluded she shot her husband and sons and then herself.

Police Chief I. B. (Dad) Bruce said an investigation showed Mrs. Dandoy had bought guns and ammunition three times since July 3. Twice guns were returned.

Ironically, the check dated June 17 which paid for the gun and ammunition used in the tragedy, was returned for lack of funds, Bruce said. He added that Mrs. Dandoy told the clerk to run the check through again and the second time it was honored.

Mrs. Dandoy wrote in a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Irving Harris, from whom the Army couple rented their small cottage, that she had gone $5,000 to $6,000 in debt without her husband's knowledge.

"My husband gave me all of his pay every month. That's how he trusted me. He thought I had paid for the car. I have lied to him and to you.

"When I was back home—in the Philippines—I spent all his money not for us, but for helping others. I went broke because of my generosity. . .

"Worst of all, I didn't only spend his money. I went into debt without his knowing it. . I forged his signature.

"I have ruined his future and our sons'. These all must come to an end."

Both Sgt. Dandoy and his wife were born in the Philippines. Dandoy served 23 years in the Army, the last five at nearby Ft. Carson.

Patrol 100,000 Acres To Keep Fire In Control

VALE, Ore. (AP)—An aerial fire spotter and a ground crew of 200 men patroled 100,000 acres of blackened brush Saturday fighting to keep a huge fire from resuming its race over the oven-dry range.

Dusty whirlwinds picked up sparks along the fire's north rim and threatened to carry them into a valuable stand of ponderosa pine. But so far, officials reported firelines ringing the blaze were holding.

The wind had died down, but the Weather Bureau put out a special forecast of strong winds for later.

"It doesn't look good," said George Lea, fire control officer of the Bureau of Land Management. "There's an awful lot of fire line to maintain, and anything can happen."

The fire spotter flying over the area in a plane kept the fire boss on the ground alerted to new flareups, so he could send men where they were needed.

Lea said two ranches near the Malheur reservoir appeared safe. Flames earlier had threatened to engulf the ranches.

US Road-Building Project Snagged By Rising Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Construction of a 41,000-mile network of superhighways crisscrossing the nation has been caught in the pinch of rising costs, and diminishing income.

Results of the pinch may not show up until fiscal 1960, which starts July 1, 1959. From then until possibly 1968, or later, it's going to hurt.

The highway act of 1956 contemplated completion of the interstate system in 13 to 15 years. Officials of the Bureau of Public Roads are now talking in terms of 16 years and possibly longer.

Original estimates put the cost of the vast road-building project at 27½ billion dollars. The federal government picks up 90 per cent of the tab and states pay the balance.

Rising costs have knocked that estimate into a cocked hat. A new estimate now being completed is expected to add a minimum of three billion dollars to the bill and maybe more.

To make the pinch more binding, income from the special excise taxes on gasoline, tires etc., is falling behind schedule. These highway users' taxes go into a special highway trust fund. Under the pay-as-you-go legislation, federal allocations to the states for the interstate system cannot exceed the amount in the fund.

ASIATIC FLU
HITS EL SALVADOR

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The health ministry said Saturday the Asiatic flu had struck a large part of this Central American country, and that it soon may be necessary to close schools, and other public places.

It said that the outbreak is expected to become serious in areas where malnutrition is a problem. The government has set aside funds to administer antibiotics in cooperation with the World Health Organization of the United Nations.

a wide range of cases having nothing to do with civil rights.

Under the Senate bill, jury trials would not be required in cases of civil contempt, where the judge's aim is to obtain compliance with his order rather than to punish a defendant.

A number of House Democrats, including some Northerners favoring a stronger measure than the Senate bill, have talked of settling at this time for the Senate bill with some changes. Notable among these is an amendment to restrict the jury trial to voting rights cases. The administration has contended that the Senate language on this score would be a damaging blow to the federal judiciary.

GIRL, 3, DIES FROM BURNS

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A 3-year-old girl died Saturday, victim of burns suffered Friday night when her father hurled a paint can of flaming gasoline out the kitchen door without realizing she was playing outside.

Det. Frank Davis said George Kazian, 39, was painting in the kitchen and had set the can with gasoline for cleaning brushes on the edge of the gas stove. Fumes apparently spread to the stove's pilot light and were ignited.

Kazian frantically tossed the can out the door, and the flaming liquid spilled over his daughter, Evelyn. She was taken to Misericordia Hospital, where she died.

Place mats have found a place on the dinner table. Lacy mats dress up formal occasions and go right into the washing machine afterwards. Plastic and other fiber mats wipe clean with a sudsy sponge.

cars at the wholesale level would mean about a $140 reduction at the retail level.

Reuther said "there is every reason to believe" that reduced prices would increase car sales substantially. A one-million car increase in the industry's sales, he said, "would leave profits that would still be at enviable levels from the standpoint of most industrialists."

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

KENT, Wash.—(NEA)—Pete Rademacher may be an amateur, but he definitely put Floyd Patterson in the more important money.

With Rocky Marciano in retirement, there didn't seem to be much in sight in the way of profitable employment for Patterson. The rehash with Hurricane Tommy Jackson—and then what.

It was here that the audacious Rademacher started setting precedents. He not only suggested this match, but he personally raised the $250,000 guarantee for Patterson. Now all Pete has to do is fight at Sick's Stadium in Seattle on Aug. 22.

This not only gave others ideas, but enabled Manager Cus D'Amato to establish a round figure as a price for a crack at the crown. It now develops that Patterson can have another $250,000 for exposing his features to Zora Folley in Phoenix, Ariz.

* * *

And President Fulgencio Batista, eager to get the minds of tradesmen and tourists off revolutionary threats in Cuba, will practically let Patterson name the purse for a joust with the native Nino Valdes in Havana.

As for this one, Patterson has no compunction against putting the slug on Rademacher, who has never had a professional fight or boxed more than three rounds. Like nearly everybody else in boxing, Patterson or anyone associated with him has never seen Rademacher box even in a gymnasium.

"I wouldn't know Rademacher if I bumped into him walking down the street," says the placid champion, "but after talking with him Cus is convinced that he believes he can lick me. So are some others, I guess. They put up $250,000.

"I'll fight Rademacher just like I'd fight anybody else."

Floyd seems to consider balding Pete a substantial sort—at the bank particularly, and inside the ring. Only veteran trainer Dan Florio reflects the attitude of the boxing man in regard to Rademacher.

"I'm anxious to get a look at the bum," Dan says.

* * *

Rademacher may be a simon-pure, but he is the target of a highly professional entourage at Kent, a farming center of 5,000 people 18 miles south of Seattle.

There are eleven in the Patterson party, including two trainers, sparring partners Bob Woodall and Wilson Hannibal, a press agent and a lawyer, the latter brought along to see that the $250,000 was properly transferred from Columbus, Ga., to a Seattle bank.

Under professional supervision, the citizens of Kent pitched outdoor and indoor training quarters for Patterson, using a cement tennis court in the city park and a junior high school gym. The ring in the park is the 18-footer in which the fight will be held.

All save the attorney, Edwin S. Schweig of New York, are quartered in a 10-room summer home five miles back in the woods on a hill overlooking Star Lake, which is loaded with black bass and trout.

Here Patterson does his roadwork in the early morning and D'Amato pops off at night on his favorite subject—the International Boxing Club and the evil forces detrimental to the game.

* * *

Meanwhile, the fantasy that is sending Rademacher against the heavyweight champion in his first professional start receives more publicity than any other fight in this generation.

With nearly everybody rapping the production as a mismatch, promoter Jack Hurley continues to sell tickets as though he were giving them away.

Hurley has so many requests from other states that he professes to be seriously considering asking Gov. Albert Rosellini to call out the National Guard and protect the State of Washington against invading customers.

Little League Champs Honored By Elks

Little League champions were recent guests of the local Elks club at a fried chicken banquet with all the trimmings. They are: 1st row left to right, Tommy Cors, Tommy De Freitas, Charles Darwent, David Thorpe, Gary Zimmer, Donald Covey, Gary Canavan and Tommy Eoff; 2nd row—Dean Willis, Billy Henly, Steve Bone, Kenneth Curtis, Leo Carroll, Kenneth Woods, Joel Westerfield, Sonny Zimmer, Dick Stratman; 3rd row—Tommy Hayes, Bob Sims, David Batty, James Crowe, Tommy Ferry, Terry Watts, Dean Gibbs, Bunkie Ferry; 4th row—Little League managers, Clarence Watts, Farrell Patterson, Paul Blakeman, John Rhoades, Charles Brittin, Barney Ferry, Dick Stratman, Wilfrid Rice, Dale Batty, James Bunch, Elks exalted ruler, and John Thorp.

Clarence Watts and Barney Ferry were managers of the Giants and Dick Stratman and John Thorpe managers of the Red Sox.

Ted Williams May Be Oldest Player Ever To Win AL Batting Title

CHICAGO (AP) — Ted Williams, Boston's splendid splinter, would be the oldest player ever to win the American League batting championship if he wins the title this year.

Williams will be 39 Friday and stands an excellent chance of not only capturing his fifth batting crown but also becoming the first .400 hitter in the majors since his 1941 mark of .406.

According to statistics released by the American League Service with Washington, won the title in 1953 at the age of 35 with a .337 average.

Others of the elderly set to win American League batting titles were Charley Gehringer, Detroit, 34, in 1937 wih a .353 and Tris Speaker, Cleveland, 33, in 1916 with a .386.

Ty Cobb, who won 12 titles with Detroit, was 32 when he topped the league with a .384 in 1919.

Should Williams win this year, he'll become the second player in the American League to win five times. Cobb was the first.

The Red Sox slugger won in 1941 (.406), 1942 (.356), 1947 (.343), and 1948 (.369). He missed by a fraction in 1949 when he finished with .3427 to George Kell's .3429.

The youngest ever to win the title was Al Kaline of Detroit with .340 in 1955 at the age of 20. Kaline was one day younger than was Cobb when he annexed the championship in 1907 with .350. Mickey Mantle was 25 when he won last year with a .353.

Going into last Friday night's activity, Williams was crusing with a .393 and Mantle in second place with .380.

Williams' torrid pace brings to mind the end of the 1941 season when he went into a final day doubleheader against the A's at Philadelphia with a .399 average.

Williams whacked four hits in five trips in the first game and could have quit to insure a .400 season. However, he played the second game and had two-for-three to lift his average to .406.

In all, only five other American Leaguers besides Williams have hit 400 or more. Cobb did it three times, George Sisler twice and Nap Lajoie, Harry Heilmann and Joe Jackson once each.

Course Is In 'Perfect Shape' For Western Golf

ST. LOUIS, (AP)—Long and Bunker studded old Warson Country Club awaits the cleats of the upper crust of the nation's non-pro Amateur golf tournament.

The St. Louis County course designed by the noted links architect, Robert Trent Jones is a 6,902-yard toughie with a 35-36—71 par.

Dutch Harrison, club professional, said he doubted that many amateurs would puncture par. The course is in "perfect shape," Harrison reportted.

Defending champion Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., and highly rated Hillman Robbins, Jr. of Memphis, are not expected to play in the Western.

Both are in the armed forces and are expected to play in the all-service golf tournament instead.

Heading the 152 entrants are these topflight amateurs:

Don Essig, III, of Indianapolis Western Junior and National Public Links champion; Don Albert of Peoria, Ill., 1956 all-service champion; Jim Tom Blair, III of St. Louis, the son of the governor of Missouri and a 1951 Western amateur finalist; Joe Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn., former national intercollegiate champion.

The 18-hole qualifying rounds will be played Monday and Tuesday with the low 50 players indulgingin 36 holes of medal play Wednesday.

Match play follows and the tournament ends Sunday.

Shantz Hurls Yankees To 6-2 Win Over Orioles

NEW YORK (AP)— Little Bobby Shantz, aided by Mickey Mantle's blazing bat, gained his first victory in nearly two months Saturday, pitching the New York Yankees to a 6-2 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

The lefthander, who hadn't won since June 23, was tagged for nine hits. But fine defensive play by his teammates and his own stinginess with men on bases enabled him to finally register his 10th victory of the season after five previous unsuccessful attempts.

Mantle, in the midst of a spectacular battle with Boston's Ted Williams for the batting title—and a possible .400 average—provided most of the offensive spark for the Yankees. The slugging center fielder cracked three hits—a double and two singles—in five times at bat and drove in two runs. His batting average now is .384, only a few points behind Williams' league-leading figure.

Clubs To Make Decisions About Shift To West

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Giants' decision to shift their National League franchise to San Francisco is expected to be made next week following a special meeting of the club's board of directors Monday.

At the same time it was learned that another board of directors' meeting—of the Brooklyn Dodgers—has been scheduled for the last week in August to consider the possibility of moving the National League champions to Los Angeles.

There appears no question that the Giants will be in San Francisco in 1958 and it is nearly as certain that the Dodgers will also do their playing next season in California. President Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers never has considered any New York area other than his coveted Flatbush Avenue site. Unless the city officials do a complete about face—which is most unlikely — that area will not be made available to O'Malley.

That's what O'Malley will tell the other major Dodger stockholders.

Stoneham, who has made it plain he wants to take his club to San Francisco next season, has stated he will announce his plans as soon as he receives the green light from the board. O'Malley has been mum on his intentions.

Each club has received generous bids. San Francisco's offer includes the erection of an eight-million, 45,000 capacity stadium to be ready in 1959 and an attractive low rental fee. Los Angeles' offer to the Dodgers includes a 55,000-capacity stadium with a low rental fee, parking and concessions deals.

Figuring largely in the plans of both clubs are contract propositions for closed-circuit television of Giant and Dodger games in San Francisco and Los Angeles carrying a minimum guarantee of a million dollars a year.

Stoneham told stockholders a move to San Francisco could "almost guarantee a net profit of $200,000 to $300,000 a year." The Giants' profit last year was a reported $26,000 when they drew only 630,000 as compared to a $1,400,000 a few years ago. The Dodgers' profit was $487,462 last year when they drew 1,231,000 as compared to their record high of 1,800,000 ten years ago.

No real obstacle is expected to confront the New York clubs.

Leslie O'Connor, president of the harried Pacific Coast League, already has announced the league would not fight an officially sanctioned major league baseball move to California by the Giants and Dodgers, but expects a "just and reasonable compensation".

With such league cities as Hollywood, San Diego and Sacramento situated so close to Los Angeles and San Francisco, it is felt the league would be wrecked once the two main cities are gobbled up by the majors. All clubs are sure to seek reimbursement for damages, which may reach the neighborhood of several million dollars.

A Dodger move to Los Angeles appears more easily accomplished than a Giant move to San Francisco. Brooklyn, already owning the L.A. franchise, would have to satisfy the other members of the league.

New York owns no franchise in the PCL. The San Francisco franchise is owned by the Boston Red Sox.

Youthful Golfers Converge In Ohio For Junior Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio, (AP) — Youthful golfers from every state in the country, the District of Columbia and Hawaii converge here next week for the 12th annual international Jaycee Junior golf tournament.

A huge field of 196 entries starts 36-hole qualifying competition Monday over Ohio State University's rugged 6,810-yard, par 36-36—72 course. Qualifying rounds Monday and Tuesday will cut the field to the low 100 scores and ties.

A new champion is assured in the 72-hole medal play event. Jack Rule Jr., of Waterloo, Iowa, who captured top honors in last year's tourney at Fargo, N.D., with a two-stroke playoff victory over Jackie Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, is ineligible. Rule, 18, is too old to compete.

But Nicklaus, Ohio's 17-year-old two-time high school titlist and last year's Ohio Open champ is back again for another crack at the crown. Most observers have tabbed him the early favorite.

A majority of this year's entries are 16 and 17 years old. George Boutell, Phoenix, Ariz., is the youngest competitor at 13.

Each of the 48 states has four boys represented. Hawaii has three entries and the District of Columbia one.

The first 18-hole round of medal play begins Wednesday with the final round slated for Saturday. Some 35,000 youths competed for sports in the event in Jaycee-conducted state tourneys.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Friday Night Scores

The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals may be able to manage a smile after drawing the line at nine consecutive losses by junking Milwaukee's winning ways, but they have a long way to go to get a back-in-the-race-again feeling.

With a hitting lapse as much to blame as anything for the slump that plunged them out of the National League lead, the Cards swung for 12 hits in beating the first-place Braves, who had won 10 in a row, 6-2 Friday night.

The victory put them within 7½ of the Braves, with three more games remaining in the Milwaukee series, and kept St. Louis a point ahead of third-place Brooklyn, a 4-1 winner over Pittsburgh.

Chicago's Cubs knocked off fourth-place Cincinnati 8-6 in 12 innings. New York took two at Philadelphia, collecting an 8-7 decision in the completion of an April 28 suspended game, then handing Robin Roberts his 16th defeat 2-1.

In the American League, the second-place Chicago White Sox blew another chance to gain on New York, losing to Detroit 6-2 while Baltimore's rising Orioles knocked off the Yankees 4-3 in 11 innings.

Boston, with Ted Williams sitting it out because of a stiff neck, was blanked by Chuck Stobbs in a 5-0 Washington victory that hoisted the Nats into a seventh-place tie with Kansas City, beaten 4-2 by Cleveland.

The Cardinals, who also picked up seven walks, clubbed Gene Conley with a three-run first, triggered by Walker Cooper's two-run, two-out double. Del Ennis rapped a three-run homer off Juan Pizarro to wrap it up in the seventh.

Lindy McDaniel won his 10th, but got the gate when the Braves scored their pair in the seventh with two out. Hoyt Wilhelm, Wilmer Mizell and Billy Muffett finished up.

Hank Aaron of the Braves was 1-for-5 for a .3326 average, while Card Stan Musial was 2-for-5 for .3333. Aaron keeps the lead, however, with more at-bats.

Dodger Manager Walt Alston lifted southpaw ace, Johnny Podres, who admitted to some arm trouble after giving up a walk and single with one out in the ninth. Ed Roebuck came on for the last two outs, nailing Podres' 10th victory. Bob Purkey lost his 10th.

The ninth was tough for Baltimore's Bill Wight, also. He had the Yanks in hand with two out, but Yogi Berra came off the bench and hit his 18th home run for a 3-3 tie. Wight worked the 10th and finally collected a 5-5 record with his third victory, against no defeats, over the champs when Billy Goodman tripled and George Kell, pinch-hitting for the 35-year-old southpaw, dumped a single over a drawn in infield.

Art Ditmar lost his first in relief, for an 8-3 record.

Billy Hoeft, now 5-7 after winning 20 last season, rode out an 11-hitter to beat the White Sox and Jim Wilson, who had won four in a row. Home runs by Ray Boone and Charlie Maxwell powered a four-run third.

The Red Sox were checked on five hits by Stobbs at Washington as the veteran lefty gained a 6-15 record. He fanned seven, getting Billy Consolo four times, twice with the bases loaded. George Susce was the loser.

Dick Williams and Rocky Colavito homered and got the job done for the Indians and Mike Garcia, now 6-7. Alex Kellner lost it.

Jim Brosnan claimed the Cubs' third victory in 14 games with the Redlegs, blanking them on two hits for five frames until Walt Moryn hit a payoff two-run homer off lefty reliever Don Gross, 4-7.

Ray Jablonski smashed a two-run homer in the ninth after Roberts had shut out the Giants on four hits for eight. It was the 31st homer off Robin. Stu Miller won in relief. Marv Grissom's 2 2-3 innings of shutout pitching clinched the completion of the suspended game.

Rademacher Says He's Ready To Fight Right Now

By JACK HEWINS

SEATTLE (AP)—Pete Rademacher made a fist of one huge hand and pounded it into the palm of the other. And he said, quietly but firmly, "I'm fit. I wish the fight was right now."

America's Olympic champion heavyweight, whose first professional fight will be for the championship of the world, added a note for the skeptics: "If I didn't think I could lick Floyd Patterson I wouldn't be here."

About the only people who seem to think the burly Pete has a chance in his Aug. 22 bout against the champ are the folks in Rademacher's own camp and—at least on the surface—Patterson and his manager, Cus D'Amato.

"He's a big, strong, hard-punching heavyweight," D'Amato said of Rademacher. "We aren't forgetting he won the Olympic title. After Floyd won his Olympic middleweight crown in 1952, I felt he was ready to meet the best of the pros, but I couldn't get him the fights."

"He's a pro," chimed in Patterson. Neither Floyd nor the manager would predict an early knockout—or any knockout. "We'll fight the fight on Thursday night," D'Amato said at Patterson's raining camp in nearby Kent.

Rademacher viewed things in the same light but was more eager for the day to arrive. After a workout at Issaquah, Rademacher said he intended to let Patterson "set the pattern."

The big farm boy from Grandview, Wash., will outweigh the champ 25 pounds. He expects to tip 210 at weigh-in, to Patterson's 185.

He will have the champion outexperienced, too. At 28 he is six years older than Patterson and has been fighting 15 years, as against Floyd's seven.

Big Pete had 79 fights, winning 72—35 NY knockout or TKO. The belittlers point out that these were amateur three-rounders, whereas the 33 pro bouts credited to Patterson were over much longer routes. The champion lost one pro engagement; Rademacher dropped seven amateur outings.

Pete is self-managed. He visited D'Amato in New York and convinced him this fight could be a financial success. Stationed in Georgia with the Army, Pete interested a number of businessmen who have posted a $250,000 guarantee for Patterson—plus another $100,000 to assure the champion a return bout if Rademacher wins.

The fight is scheduled for midnight (CST). Promoter Jack Hurley has barred telecasts and radio coverage of the scrap.

The challenger cannot make a nickel from the bout. His agreement with Hurley assures him 60 per cent of the gate to apply on the guarantee to the champion. Sixty per cent of the anticipated gate comes to $240,000.

Moline's Drag Races Attract 500 Hot Rodders

MOLINE, Ill. (AP)— Five hundred hot rodders from coast to coast are heading toward Moline for the Automobile Timing Association of America's fourth annual world series of drag racing Aug. 21 through Aug. 25.

James Lamona, events director for the ATAA, said Saturday about 20,000 spectators are expected to attend the events at the Quad City Drag Strip at Cordova, Ill., 20 miles north of Moline. More than 70 trophies will be awarded for engineering, design and sportsmanship and for top speeds in the various classes.

The grand prize is a $1,000 university scholarship.

Art Arfons, of Akron, Ohio, who has hit 167.67 m.p.h. in competition is defending champion. A Muscatine, Iowa, hot rodder, Warren Poole, holds the present Quad City drag strip mark of 152.54 m. p. h.

The ATAA is a national nonprofit organization of hot rodders dedicated to traffic safety and automotive engineering.

A drag race is a race of acceleration run over a quarter-mile course.

High School Football Drills Begin August 26

CHICAGO (AP) — Football practices for members of the Illinois High School Association will open Aug. 26, with some 400 schools participating in 11-man football.

The IHSA, in announcing the starting date for drills Saturday, said some schools will issue equipment and give the required physical examinations at an earlier date. But under IHSA rules, no school may organize or practice before Aug. 26.

The rules also stipulate that players must have engaged in a minimum of 90 minutes of actual practice on each of the 14 days preceding the first game or scrimmage and no school may play its opening game earlier than Sept. 13.

"These rules were adopted by members of the Association for the protection of the players and to promote equality in competition among the schools," Albert Willis, IHSA executive secretary, said.

Growing Tree, Demolition Of Stand Symbolize End Of Chicago U. Football

CHICAGO (AP)—Football died at the University of Chicago in 1939.

Nothing so emphatically symbolized the end than when a tree began growing in Stagg Field.

Now the cycle is being completed.

Demolition crews are tearing down the turret-towered west stand. The structure had become unsound. This section was an athletic showplace in the Big Ten when it was opened in 1912 seating 8,000.

Fifteen years ago it became a birthplace of the nuclear age.

Under it Enrico Fermi operated the "pile" which demonstrated that the controlled release of nuclear energy was possible.

Thus, the west stand becomes unique as a landmark of track and football at its best, and of science at one of its greatest moments.

The north stand of Stagg Field, seating 17,000, will remain. It probably never will be filled. Intramural sports have no gate appeal.

But there are plenty of echoes from the past when Amos Alonzo Stagg, who celebrated his 95th birthday Friday at his Stockton, Calif., home masterminded some of the greatest football games in Big Ten lore.

In the heyday, headlines told of exploits of such University of Chicago players as Walter Eckersall, Walter Steffen, Paul Desjardien, Charles McGuire, John Thomas, Joe Pondelik Jr., A.R. (Five Yards) Mc Carty and Jay Berwanger — last of its sturdy sturdy sons.

On the eve of his birthday, Stagg said that "I regret the necessity of tearing down the west stand," but in typical diplomatic fashion he added:

"But they know what they are doing back there... The university knows how to run its own business."

In 1905, as Stagg's Maroons gained the prestige that prompted the enlargement of facilities by the construction of the west stand, Stagg Field was the scene of one of the Big Ten's most memorial football games.

Michigan's point-a-minute powerhouse of Fielding H. Yost was knocked off by the Maroons 2-0.

"It's all vividly clear to me," said Stagg this week. "Eckersall punted the ball over the goal line and the Michigan man was tackled behind the goal line for the only two points in the game.

"Eckersall set up the punt late in the game on a clever bit of running. He ran the ball out from behind his own goal to about the 25-yard line shortly before he was forced to punt. Michigan had been ruler of the west for four years. It was unbeaten and had scored 2,746 points to 40 for the opposition. That was a great day.

With the west stand filled to overflowing Princeton defeated the Maroons 21-18 in a 1921 thriller. Chicago blew a 14-0 lead but was on the goal line as the game ended after failing to make it across in four smashes. Fritz Crisler, now athletic director at Michigan, played end for Stagg in that game.

In 1924 came a 21-21 tie between Chicago and Illinois in a duel between Red Grange and the Maroon's "five-yard" McCarty.

Football died because the Maroons no longer could keep up with the Big Ten standard.

The vacant strip left by the west stand demolition, probably will be used for tennis courts.

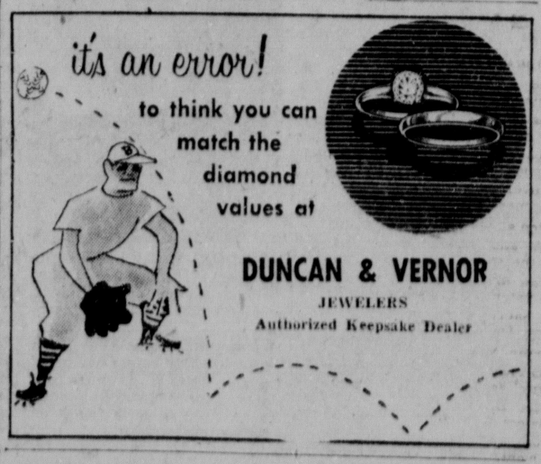

A plaque commemorating the first self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction will be placed on the original site.

Cubs Run Winning Streak To 5 Games, Beat Redlegs, 2-1

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs ran their winning streak to five games Saturday as they handed the Cincinnati Redlegs a 2-1 defeat, their fifth in a row.

A bases loaded sacrifice fly by Ernie Banks plated the winning run in the eighth inning and presented relief twirler Turk Lown with his fifth triumph of the season.

Lown had taken over for young Dave Hillman in the top of the eighth with two runners aboard and two out. He retired Don Hoak on a fly to center for the final out of the inning and then tossed a hitless ninth.

Frankie Robinson's 22nd homer, coming in the first inning, accounted for the Redlegs' only run. However, with Hillman doling out six passes, the Redlegs had other chances to score, but failed to come up with the timely hit.

Redlegs Sign Wildcat Pitching Star, Jay Hook

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs have signed Jay Hook, Northwestern University pitching star, "for one of the largest bonuses ever paid a pitcher in the major leagues," the Redlegs management announced Saturday.

Hook, 20-year old righthander native of Grayslake, Ill. near Chicago, will report to the club some time after September 1.

He had been sought by every major league baseball club, the Redlegs front office said.

Hook is a third year student in engineering at Northwestern, and plans to complete his education during the off-season.

Recently he has been playing amateur baseball in Milwaukee. In one 12 inning game he struck out 25 men; in another nine-inning game, he fanned 19. He won 10 and lost four games during his senior year at Grayslake High School in 1954, and struck out 188 men in 91 innings of play.

Football Drills Start Aug. 31 At Wisconsin U.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Football coach Milt Bruhn of the University of Wisconsin announced Saturday that he has invited 61 players, including 12 returning varsity lettermen, to the team's 1957 drills, starting Aug. 31.

The players will begin twice-a-day workouts Sept. 2 and will continue until Sept. 23 when classes begin.

The Illinois residents among the 12 returning varsity men are: Bill Oehler of Mendota, Ronald Carlson of St. Charles, and Tom Peters of Glen Ellyn.

Peters played in 1955 but missed the 1956 season because of scholarship difficulties.

Ward collected the $5,000 top prize.

Venturi Grabs Third Round Lead In St. Paul Open

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — First year pro Ken Venturi of San Francisco grabbed the lead from Jay Hebert on the third round of the St. Paul Open golf tournament Saturday when he shot a seven-under par 65 for a 54 hole total of 198—18 under par for the Keller course.

Hebert, who took a two-stroke lead into the third round, slipped to a one under par 71 for a 202 and a tie for fifth place.

Moving into the challenging position at 200 were defending champion Mike Souchak of Grossingers, N. Y.; Don Fairfield of Casey, Ill., and Marty Furgol of Lemont, Ill. Souchak and Fairfield shot 65s and Furgol a 66.

Souchak, hoping to become the first player to win two St. Paul Opens in a row since Harry Cooper did it in 1935 and 1936, matched Venturi's 65.

Souchak's round was built on fine putting that brought eight one putt greens.

Dave Thomas, 23 year old pro from London, shot a nine under par 63, to come within one shot of the tournament record for 18 holes. Thomas, for the second straight day, played the first nine in five under par 31 and then came back in 32.

He had seven birdies, an eagle and 10 pars on the round. It gave him a 202 and a tie for fifth place at the end of the third round.

Aaron's Double Scores Winning Run In 11th, Braves Edge Cards, 5-4

MILWAUKEE (AP)— A one-out double by Henry Aaron scored the winning run for Milwaukee in the last of the 11th inning Saturday, and enabled the reviving Braves to defeat St. Louis, 5-4, and push their National League lead over the Cardinals back to 8½ games.

Aaron's blast, scoring Hank Taylor and Ed Mathews, came after the Cards had pulled into a 4-3 lead in the top of the inning when veteran Walker Cooper lifted a sacrifice fly to left field, scoring Don Blasingame.

Warren Spahn received credit for his 14th win against 8 defeats.

Larry Jackson, who mesmerized the Braves with six innings of perfect ball, left the game in the 10th and escaped the defeat. That went to young Billy Muffet, who had no previous record.

For the home crowd of 42,508—including 39,694 paid and 2,814 knotholers—the top of the 11th was a harrowing affair. Don Blasingame stretched what looked like a routine single into a lead off double when the Braves were slow to cover second, then scored on Cooper's fly.

But in the bottom of the inning Frank Torre singled and Ed Mathews followed with another, moving Taylor—who ran for Torre—to third. Then came Aaron, and the long poke.

Hank Aaron Accuses Cardinal Pitchers Of Throwing 'Bean Balls'

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Hank Aaron, leading hitter among Braves' regulars, with an average of 331, Saturday angrily accused St. Louis pitchers of deliberately throwing at him.

The normally placid outfielder unloosed a torrent of "bean ball" charges at Redbird pitchers, particularly Larry Jackson and Sam Jones, after his 11th inning double delivered the tieing and winning runs in National League leading Milwaukee's 5-4 victory over the Cards. It was Aaron's only hit in five trips.

"It's getting so now," said Aaron, "that you can't even hit a long fly ball without getting one thrown at your head. I get a base hit and the next time up I'm flat on my back."

Aaron accused Jackson, who worked the first 10 innings, of "trying to stick one in my ear" in the ninth inning. The pitch, inside and head-high, forced Aaron to scramble out of the way. Aaron's game winning double was off reliefer Billy Muffett.

"They've been doing that all season," Aaron said. "Jackson's done it before and Jones has done it in St. Louis. I know neither of them is that wild. It's on purpose. I can tell when they're throwing at me.

"I've got a family just like they've got. If that's the only way they can win a ball game then they ought to get other jobs. I don't mind being brushed back—you expect that— but I don't like them balls aimed at my head.

"I'm just like a rabbit. Everytime I go up there I've got to jump around and look for a hole."

Hoop Band Sets Track Mark, Wins Ward Handicap

CHICAGO (AP)— Hoop Band, a 13-1 shot, zoomed to the front at the head of the stretch and barreled to a 4½ length victory under jockey John Heckman Saturday in winning the $57,450 Arch Ward Memorial Handicap at Washington Park.

The 4-year-old bay gelding, owned by Mrs. Ada L. Rice, Chicago, matched the track record for 1 3-16 mile on the turf of 1:54 3-5. The mark was set by Swaps in 1955.

The even money favorite, John Zitnik's Manassas, was second in a photo finish with D. E. Loveman's Sunningdale. Festin was fourth in the field of 12.

The defeat was Manassas' first in six starts on the turf this season.

Hoop Band paid $28, $8.60 and $5.40 to upporters in a crowd of 25,461. Manassas, beating out Sunningdale by a nose for second, returned $3.40 and $2.80. Sunningdale's show price was $4.40.

VANDALS DAMAGE LITTLE LEAGUE PARK

CHICAGO (AP)—Vandals did an estimated $8,000 damage Friday night to the Southeast Little League baseball park, which serves several communities.

Using 4 by 4 inch timbers, they knocked down 100 feet of fence, collapsed 250 bleacher seats, ripped roofs from two dugouts and virtually demolished the cement dugouts themselves and routed holes in the turf.

Police had been called earlier in the evening when residents of the Kingston and 94th St. section were disturbed by noise from the playing field. Officials speculated the vandals returned and scaled the fence to do their damage.

Herbert H. Barnett, league vice president, said parents of league players, and other community residents had raised $12,000 a year ago as a down payment on the $45,000 field.

Wildcat Coach Wonders About Team's Chances

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Coach Freddie Lindstrom, former New York Giant star, Saturday is wondering if Northwestern's defending Big Ten baseball champions will have any resemblance of a battery next spring.

The signing of Jay Hook for a bonus Saturday by the Cincinnati Redlegs made the second pitcher Lindstrom has lost in the past week. Hook, a 20-year-old righthander from Grayslake, Ill., had another season of eligibility.

Reports indicated Hook signed for $65,000.

Dave Hill, a 19-year-old lefthander from Milwaukee, Wis., was signed Thursday to a $30,000 bonus by the Kansas City Athletics. Hill had two more years at Northwestern.

Lindstrom's son, Chuck—voted the top American League player in 1954—earlier this summer signed for a small bonus with the Chicago White Sox. Lindstrom would have been a senior in September.

The only consolation for Lindstrom is that his most valuable player, Tom Scheuerman of Moline, Ill., has so far been able to ward off major league offers. Scheuerman, the top Big Ten pitcher this year, said the St. Louis Cardinals were interested in him.

Sheppard Ahead In Senior Open

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Charley Sheppard of West Newton, Mass., wrested the lead from Gene Sarazen Saturday after 54 holes of the $12,500 National Senior Open Golf tournament.

Sheppard shot a two under par 68 for a 54-hole total of 201, two strokes better than the veteran Sarazen who had a one over 71.

Sheppard, 51, shot brilliant golf with four straight birdies on the back nine and missed a chance to go even further ahead with a double bogie on the 17th.

Sarazen, 55-year-old two-time U. S. Open champion, got fine distance with his drives but was having trouble on the greens and lost his head for the first time since the 72-holt tourney started Tuesday.

Sarazen dropped into a tie for second with Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich., who shot a 69 for a 203 total.

Fred Wood of Vancouver, B.C., and Jimmy Hines of Palm Springs, Calif., both shot sub par 68s to rank next at 204.

CINCINNATI (AP)—A 15-year-old swimmer Saturday night broke two American records in the backstroke.

Ed Beck a sophomore at Roger Bacon High School, swam 1,500 meters in 21:09.3. Previous best time for the short-course record was set by Adolph Kiefer, Lakeshore Club, Chicago, who did it in 21:20.1 in 1935.

CARDINAL FOOTBALL TEAM INNOCULATED

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League Saturday announced the entire squad will be innoculated against Asiatic flu.

Walter Wolfner, managing director, said since the Cardinals opened training at Lake Forest College July 28 at least 40 players have been affected "with flu germs."

Wolfner said it was not natural for flu to be around this time of the year and it has weakened the condition of the squad. The Cardinals Friday night were defeated by the Green Bay Packers, 24-16, in an exhibition game at Miami.

Wolfner said several of the players were unable to suit up for practice Thursday night and some of the rookies weren't able to participate in the game because of a "weakened condition."

CUBA ON THE FIRST BOUNCE—Diagram above illustrates working principle of a revolutionary new TV broadcasting technique permitting programs to be broadcast 185 miles, non-stop, from the U.S. to Cuba. It hinges on new-type sending stations, whose completion has just been announced by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. Stations are set up at Florida City, 30 miles south of Miami and Guanabo, Cuba, 10 miles from Havana. Unless "booster" stations are used, conventional broadcasting is limited to a 30-to-40 mile "line of sight" distance to the horizon. Beyond that the signals are "lost" by the curvature of the earth. In the new system, the TV signals are aimed from a 60-foot square, steel-plated antenna, shaped something like an outdoor movie screen. The signals, aimed upward, hit the layer of air known as the troposphere. Some of the beams' energy is deflected downward, where it is received 185 miles away. This enables creation of a TV image "almost as good" as that produced by conventional broadcasting.

Detroit News Fails To Publish Sunday Edition

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit News failed to publish a Sunday edition Saturday night because of a dispute with mailer employes, but Detroit's two other daily newspapers published, using the News' masthead underneath their own.

Papers usually hit the streets about 7 p.m., but the first press runs of the Detroit Free Press and Detroit Times were not being loaded on trucks until shortly before 9 p.m. Free Press trucks rolled shortly afterward and the Times said it anticipated no distribution problems.

The Free Press and Times, although not directly involved in the strike, earlier delayed distribution of Sunday editions, running only a few hundred issues off presses for editorial record purposes.

Woman, Daughters Injured In Wreck

A woman and her two small daughters from LeRoy, Ill., were injured yesterday morning 4½ miles east of this city on U. S. Routes 36-54, in an unusual collision of a station wagon and a truck.

Mrs. William H. McBribe, 43; Mary, 6, and Billie, 11, sustained cuts and bruises. They were taken to Passavant hospital where they underwent X-ray examination.

Their injuries were found not to be serious. They left the hospital at the conclusion of treatment and examination.

A 1956 Chevrolet station wagon driven by William H. McBride and a truck loaded with baled hay, driven by Edward Mueller of New Berlin, were badly damaged in a collision that is said to have occurred after the station wagon ran back and fourth across the pavement, after it went out of control.

State police said both vehicles were traveling west, and that the station wagon was pulling a small trailer used to haul personal goods. McBride lost control of the station wagon just after passing the truck.

The station wagon ran from the left side of the pavement, then across to the right side where it lost the trailer. As the station wagon again cut back on the pavement it was hit broadside by the oncoming truck, according to officers.

The badly-battered station wagon was towed to the Brummett garage and the truck, owned by Carl Hemberger of New Berlin, was towed to the Lukeman garage.

State Patrolmen Clyde Vasconcellos, Jr., and John Waltrip were officers at the scene.

Protecting hands while working outdoors is very important. Gloves are the easiest method but these must be clean and fresh each time or they lose their protective qualities. Smearing a cream on your hands will keep dirt from working into the skin.

Woman Fined $200 As Keeper Of Gaming House

When Mabel Branum appeared in the court of Police Magistrate Fred Daniels yesterday morning to answer a charge of keeping a gaming house and a couple of other charges, she had "cooled off" after her arrest Friday night when a game was in progress at her home, 504 North Sandy street. She had spent the night in the women's cell block at the police station.

Responding to a call that excessive noise was heard at the Branum home, Patrolmen Wilbur Stafford and Robert Brune went to the North Sandy street address at 8:38 o'clock Friday evening. Both officers spotted cards and money on a table, around which there were several persons.

Mrs. Branum is alleged to have resisted the officers when they tried to take her to the police station. According to the officers, they had to drag her to get her to the car.

Yesterday she paid a fine of $200 for keeping a gaming house; $35 for resisting an officer, and $14 for disorderly conduct. She was released after payment of the fines.

Officers said the defendant was in possession of $74.30 in bills, nickels, dimes and quarters, indicating that the game carried considerable monetary value, and a deck of cards.

Other fines assessed in police magistrate court yesterday included: Steve Gray, $5 and costs, not having license on person; Paul Conlee, Jacksonville route 4, $10, speeding; Edward Lonergan, $35, reckless driving; Virginia Cowper, $14, disorderly conduct; Percy Johnson, $14, disorderly conduct; Walter Combs, Murrayville, $35 for not having license on person; Clarence Floyd, $25, driving in reckless manner.

Among those fined were four drunks and several for improper parking.

AN ELECTRIC BROODER FOR LAMBS

DUANE DEAN, 15, of Griggsville raises Suffolk sheep and has found that a home-made brooder with an electric heat light bulb saves newly-born lambs by drying them out in a hurry.

He showed how to make such a brooder in a demonstration at the state fair last week and won a blue ribbon.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Winfred Dean, he is a member of the Hoof & Horn 4-H club led by Burt Weas and Melvin Moore.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

Tiny plant roots, fragile and easily bent, do not impress either farmer or agricultural researcher. Their penetrating force appears insignificant next to the force of a heavy tractor dragging a hardened steel chisel more than knee deep through soil. The imperceptible worming, crowding, pressing and pushing of hair-like roots through the ground seems feeble compared with the roaring eruption of explosives which are sometimes used to break up the earth.

Perhaps it's only natural, then, that each generation, as research records reveal, must try tools with visible power and force to open soils to a greater depth in the hope that crop yields will be increased.

Most often this hope is not realized.

Thus far, in two years of experimenting, deep tillage has not increased the yields of either corn or wheat on the soils at the Station. Corn yields have been the same — 57 bushels an acre — whether planted on deep tilled fields or not.

Lime and large amounts of fertilizer elements, placed 8 to 20 inches deep after the upheaval of the chisel, increased yields very little. The return for 1,000 lbs. of limestone, 500 lbs. of 48% super phosphate, 200 lbs. of ammonium nitrate, and 200 lbs. of 60% potash added less than four bushels of corn and less than six bushels of wheat an acre. This deep-placed fertilizer was in addition to surface applications of limestone, phosphate and potash that had been applied as dictated by soil tests.

This fertility work is piling up evidence for the wisdom of fertilizing according to soil tests. Both years of this test had near normal summer rainfall, and the basic soil fertility program was adequate for this amount of water.

Find Corn Crop A Week To 10 Days Late

"Early frost will do a lot of damage" says our DeKalb reporter from southwestern Minnesota, and that echoes the thinking of most northern areas. The general consensus of opinion is that the corn crop is a week to 10 days behind.

But the corn crop is much more irregular in development this year than for a long time. Wet weather and floods caused considerable late planting and replanting which means that fields of corn knee high to waist high could be found in almost any area on Aug. 15.

A puzzling problem is to decide what maturity of corn to plant when planting is delayed two weeks to a month. DeKalb's research department is conducting trials this year comparing varieties ranging in maturity from 80 to 120 days. This comparison is conducted by planting at dates approximately 10 days apart beginning in early May and ending in late June. There is undoubtedly a time in the planting season when the corn grower should desert his regular varieties of full season maturity and go to something earlier as a protection against frost damage.

Crop reports are quite spotted at mid-August. Dry weather is hurting the corn crop in western Iowa, northwestern Missouri, eastern Nebraska and in northwestern Ohio. On the other hand, corn is reported as "excellent" in New York, northern Illinois and southern Michigan.

Hail is more of a western threat to corn. A million dollar recent loss occurred in LacQuiParle County in western Minnesota.

Another severe northwestern threat this year is the "aster yellows", a vicious disease doing a great deal of damage to flax in the Dakotas and Minnesota.

Your chances for a good lawn are best when you renovate in August and September.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

CALF CROP IN RANGE STATES DOWN 4 PER CENT

The official calf crop report for 1957 was released recently. It gives us a better picture of the feeder cattle situation than was available heretofore.

The total number of calves born and to be born this year is estimated at 41.3 million head. Thus number is 2 per cent less than last year, and 3 per cent less than the record calf crop 3 years ago.

Of the total calf crop, about 48 per cent was from cows and heifers kept for milk, and 52 per cent from other cows and heifers.

Range States. The calf crop in the 17 range states is expected to be about 17.7 million head, compared with 18.4 million head last year. The reduction amounts to about 700,000 head, or 4 per cent.

The big reductions are in two states, Texas and Kansas. Texas will have an estimated 3.8 million calves, 8 per cent than last year. Kansas will have 1.4 million, 12 per cent less. Most of the other range states will have about the same number of calves they had last year.

Yearlings. On January 1 the 17 range states had about 10.0 million calves, or 6 per cent less than one year before. Most of these calves are now yearlings. This number does not include any dairy heifer calves. Again, the greatest reductions were in the southern plains—Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma—where cuts averaged about 11 per cent.

Restocking. Some of the range states cut cattle numbers during the drouth years, and may now rebuild herds. This is particularly true of Kansas and Texas. The number of non-dairy cattle in Texas on Jan. 1 was 6.5 million, down 12 per cent from the peak four years before. The number in Kansas was 3.0 million, down 17 per cent from the peak two years ago. This rebuilding job is relatively small compared with some of those in the past, as in 1951 and 1952. Furthermore, it is not likely to be done in one year.

The total number of non-dairy cattle on farms and ranches last Jan. 1 is estimated at 60.7 million head. This was only 2 per cent less than the all-time high a year before, and 1 per cent less than the second highest number two years before.

An addition of two million cattle would bring numbers up to near their all-time high in the 17 range states. This number would be about 10 per cent of the calves and yearlings now in those states.

Heavy restocking in the central and southern plains will restrict the supply of stockers and feeders moving out of those areas. On the other hand, other areas of the United States also produce large numbers of beef cattle. Therefore, the holding back of cattle for restocking this one area will not cut deeply into the supply of beef next year.

Farmers in the corn belt stocked up with large numbers of cattle, especially calves, last fall. Some of these cattle are still on hand, so farmers may not need so many cattle as they bought last fall.

L. H. Simerl
Department of Agricultural Economics

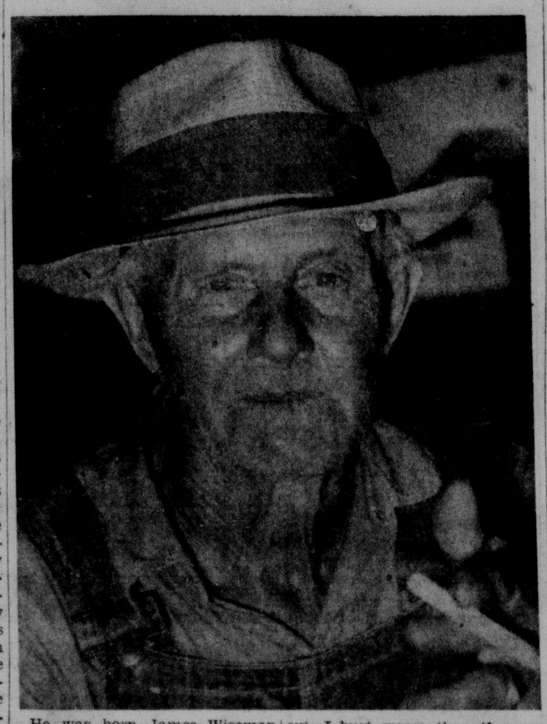

A total of 734 herds or almost 45 per cent of all herds tested last year in the DHIA program averaged more than 400 pounds of butterfat.

What's The Hardest Work In The World? Bucking Bales, I Say

"I'll be 70 years old tomorrow," said Pat Wiseman of Virginia as he sat in the city park last Wednesday, "and I'll say the hardest work I ever come across is bucking bales. You got to pick up all you can lift and then horse it up three or four high.

"Of course, they're using their heads a little more these days and the bales come lighter. But back about 50 years ago a 100 pound bale was standard. They wanted to go easy on the wire and they didn't care anything about your back.

"I've done about everything that doesn't amount to much, worked on the farm, built levees, a lot of carpenter work, plastering, lathing, plumbing and block laying," declared the genial, blue-eyed oldster, "but for hard work I never come across anything like bucking bales."

He was born James Wiseman on a farm just east of Kilbourne in Mason county.

"My mother died when I was three years old and I was raised by Minnie Clark, only I called her Aunt Sallie. She came from Missouri where her father had kept slaves. She knew Jesse James and his brother, Frank. Both of them would sneak around to the back door nights to mooch eats. In my book, they never amounted to too much.

"There were four boys and two girls in our family. Lon lives near Jackson, Mich.; Frank is at Bath and Bert is in Chandlerville. Annie and Ollie are gone.

Real Business

"Getting back to work, the hardest day I ever put in, I believe, was when I was 18 years old at Moore's brick saloon on the first day of the Bath fish fry. Curley Walker runs it now and is doing a bang-up job and he gives away the best fish in the world every Sunday afternoon.

"Billy didn't have any furniture in the place, just the counter and some whiskey barrels along the wall. The place was crowded from 6 a.m. to midnight; five of us tended bar and we took in $778. We sold big crockware steins of beer for a dime, whiskey for a dime and bottled beer the same. The bottled beer was Bud, Falstaff and Gold Top. The bar whiskey, siphoned out of a barrel, was Cedar Creek, River Springs and Old Taylor. Bar whiskey cost six bits a quart, not a dinky bottle like we have now. We had three bonded brands, Old Taylor, Yellowstone Park and Four Clubs, at a dollar a quart.

"I tell that to some of the young sprouts circulating around here these facts and they just smile and don't believe me."

Pat lit a cigarette and took a long pull.

The Good Old Days

"Now, in answer to your question as to the best days of my life. That was back before I was married and was squiring around with the gals and playing baseball regular. Sometimes I caught, but generally I played left field. I was on the Oklahoma Indians. We had red suits and played on Field's prairie west of Kilbourne. Then I played with the Sangamon Giants. We had gray suits with big letters on the back. Later I played with the Cody Corner team. Cody Corner was just a little place in the sticks east of Sadoria. Some of us had gray uniforms and the rest played in overalls.

"Now I'll tell you the worst thing that ever happened to me.

"I was out one afternoon with my son, Edward — who lives in Memphis now — with a dog and no gun. The dog treed a possum, and we got him. Then the dog went over to a blue grass patch and started barking around. I knew he'd cornered a skunk.

Skunks Are Skunks

"I know skunks. I knew if the dog was pulled off the skunk would hunkle down a nearby dry run. So I told Ed to grab the dog and I took a club and stood on the bank of this dry run.

"If you hit a skunk over the back just right he can't squirt.

"So here came the skunk, ambling along first rate. Just as I got ready to hit him, the bank I was standing on caved in. I fell flat on my face. The skunk sashayed around, high-tailed, and let me have it spank between the eyes.

"I can tell you the lights went out. I hurt worse than if somebody had thrown me in a bed of live coals. I called Ed and told him to lead me to a water hole, where I washed up. By then, I was so mad that I followed the hound and killed the skunk.

Trappers' Lament

"Sold the hide for $8. Don't suppose it would fetch more than a dollar and a quarter now. Old trappers have been hard hit, with fur so cheap and whiskey so high.

"Yep, I'll tell you about the job I liked best. Doc Peavines of Chandlerville had a merry-go-round and I ran it. A section of the ring raised up so you could lead in a horse. There were gears in the machine and every time the horse went around once the merry-go-round went around three times.

"Rides cost 10c straight. For music we had a violin player and a guitar player riding in one of the chairs. Round and round they went, sawing and plucking away.

Figured To A T

"Sure, I can tell you the worst job I ever had. It was when I was building privies for the WPA. The WPA had signed me on as a carpenter, which I was. Everything was OK for a while until some wise jerk in Washington took his slide rule and figured out the material list. So much this and so much that. It came in a bundle, one bundle to the privy.

"The guy had it figured just so-so. If you cut each board right you could build a privy, but you wouldn't have enough scraps left to start a fire in the kitchen stove. If you cut a board wrong you had to larch around and swipe one to finish the job, because the man in Washington said that you had enough lumber for the job and that if you needed any more it would come out of your wages, such as they were.

"I never want to go through another WPA.

"But, at that, it beat bucking bales."

Your Wheat Seed May Be Better Than You Think

URBANA — Farmers who want to test their seed wheat should not be misled by scattered reports of poor germination, W. O. Scott, University of Illinois crops specialist, warns.

Although some wheat may not be good enough for seed, Scott says that wheat must be germinated properly to get an accurate test. At this time of year, wheat is in a dormant stage. To get it to germinate, it must be chilled in a refrigerator for 5 to 6 days to break the dormancy.

Scott points out that scab spores are also present even on healthy kernels of wheat this year.

These spores produce a blight that causes new seedlings to die. So wheat that is being tested for germination should be treated with Ceresan M or Panogen. Of course, all seed wheat should be treated before planting, too, Scott emphasizes.

Low test weights are not necessarily a sure cause for low germination, the agronomist explains. Tests have shown that wheat with test weight as low as 40 pounds, when tested properly, may germinate around 80 per cent

Better Berries Follow Timely Care In Fall

If you want healthy and productive berries next year, there are a few simple things you will want to do this fall.

On raspberries, you should remove and burn the old canes that bore fruit this season. They may have already begun to die, but if they haven't, they will soon. These canes carry disease and the sooner they can be removed from the patch, the better off the younger plants are.

You'll also be ahead to mulch the soil around the plants with sawdust or shavings. This will help hold moisture and keep weeds from growing too.

To keep your rows 3 to 4 feet wide, remove all suckers between rows by cultivating or pulling them out.

On your strawberries, one of the best ways to insure a good patch is to keep it free of weeds. As the runner plants form, space and set them six to eight inches apart.

Keep the row about 18 to 24 inches wide by removing all runners and plants beyond these limits.

For a winter mulch, use good clean straw. It should be free of weed seed to insure a clean patch next year.

U. I. Dairy Day Will Feature Sterile Milk

URBANA — Dairy Day visitors on Sept. 5 at the University of Illinois will have a chance to taste sterile concentrated milk.

This milk has been kept in sealed tins for two months at room temperatures without losing quality. You'll have a chance to drink fresh milk at the same time to compare taste. The sterile concentrated milk will be reconstituted with fresh water to its original form.

Sterile milk offers the opportunity to store heavy supplies of milk in spring to fill the gap later when the supply drops. Balancing supply with demand throughout the year will be a big advantage to producers, by resulting in a more stable market for milk.

Check rams to be sure they are free of parasites before you turn them in with the flock for the breeding season, suggests a veterinarian at the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station.

Youth And Crime

The other day an official of New York City's Youth Board decried what he described as public hysteria over a recent flare-up of youthful crimes in the country's biggest city.

He said the incidents were "isolated" in the sense that they bore no direct relation to one another, and indicated thereby that he did not believe they constituted evidence of a crime wave.

He admitted the public should be made to grasp the seriousness of youthful criminal offenses—killings in these instances—but still felt that the newspapers had carried matters too far.

Police officials in the city then reinforced this view by arguing that things were better than they had been a year ago, three years ago, and more than a decade back.

Whatever may be the truth about this particular series of crimes, there is nothing "isolated" about the statistics which show the almost uninterrupted growth—percentagewise — of youthful crime in the United States.

To suggest that things are markedly better and that the newest New York outburst is an unfortunate departure from an improving trend is to cast a distorted light on the crime situation among the nation's youth.

Nobody wants hysteria in dealing with this problem, and actually there has not been any real sign of it in New York or elsewhere. Most of the time there has been too much of the opposite commodity—public lethargy.

A good many scientists seem to feel that what the American people need to demonstrate is a greater capacity for indignation than they customarily show. The crime problem has many sides. It is deep laid. It will not solve itself. And it will not be solved unless enough people get stirred up about it.

Neither the press nor anybody else ought to have to apologize these days for proposing that something positive and comprehensive and lastingly effective be done about juvenile crime in New York and every other corner of this land.

Admirable Preparedness

We in the United States do not know yet whether this country is going to be plagued with an epidemic of so-called Asiatic influenza. But health authorities believe there is a strong probability of it.

In consequence of that threat, Americans generally can have only the highest praise for the way in which health specialists are preparing for any emergency.

By mid-September they expect to have some eight million doses of vaccine available. Half will go to the armed forces, the rest to essential workers in transportation, communications and similar important fields.

The goal is 60 million vaccine doses by February, which would make possible inoculation of virtually all children and most of the aged—the groups aside from essential workers whose protection is considered most vital.

To achieve this, the health people have half a dozen drug manufacturers working triple shifts seven days a week.

The disease apparently is basically mild, though secondary infections can complicate matters. The real problem seems to be the speed with which an epidemic can spread. Authorities said city of one million could find 200,000 people laid low within a few days.

It is this that they are moving with such remarkable dispatch to prevent.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's scant else to watch but old movies on TV this summer, so let's talk about old movies.

Yes, I watch them, same as you. It gives me a chance to see the movies I've missed (usually I'm not sorry I missed 'em). Or I can determine if the pictures were as good as I thought they were (usually they're not).

Let me say this: it takes a mighty good movie to impress you on TV.

Lack of immediacy has something to do with this. You know the movie was made 10 or 20 years ago, played itself out and is now wheezing around on TV to earn a few bucks for its makers. The actors are that much older, or have died. It's sort of like watching a moving museum.

Another thing—the movies were made for the monster screen, not the teensy one. The longshots get all muddied up on my 16-incher.

Then there's something else. The commercials. Oh, brother!

Those pitchmen who come in at every reel are the best argument for pay-TV.

Sometimes it's worth facing up to all those hurdles. Sometimes a movie zings across the screen with a finesse that makes you realize the films can be a real art. Not often, but just often enough to make you keep coming back for more.

Scrupulous Screening—Research—Chicken, Art—Be Seated, Please—Right Jacket—Auntie Jayne

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The White House announcement of the schedule of events for visiting Queen Elizabeth hadn't been released 10 minutes when the British embassy began to get swamped with calls from socialites, social climbers, lobbyists, diplomats and miscellaneous government officials.

What they are after, of course, is an invitation to the Friday afternoon garden party for the Queen which will be the biggest social event of the year. About 2,000 invitations will go out.

Deciding who shall get one will be the most scrupulous social screening to which this town has ever been subjected. And there's no crashing his party. The Secret Service and FBI will be 10-deep around the embassy garden to make certain that nobody who doesn't hold his legal invitation gets in.

Just Before Ike announced his nomination of Neil McElroy to be secretary of defense, he revealed that the Procter & Gamble chief had been subject to numerous prior investigations to determine his fitness for the job.

But it turns out that these probes of McElroy were nothing compared to the scrutiny he and his record are getting from the services now that he's definitely going to get the job.

For example, the Air Force is trying to determine if he has a tendency to get air sick, what his favorite plane is, how many relatives he had in the Air Force and whether he's a pilot.

The Army is doing elaborate research on McElroy's favorite foods, how well he plays golf, his hobbies and preference in automobiles. The Navy is pushing a similar line of research.

You never know when such personal information on the boss will come in handy.

Wisconsin's Sen. Alexander Wiley likes fried chicken better than he does art and doesn't care who knows it. He attended an art exhibit luncheon thrown by an outfit called Manpower, Inc. The exhibit featured paintings by business executives. Wiley made a fast pass at the exhibits and demanded of his hosts:

"When do we eat? I'm hungry."

Lunch wasn't due for a half hour but the people in charge of the affair managed to serve it 15 minutes early.

"I guess paintings are interesting," Wiley told a Manpower executive, "but give me this fried chicken over art every time."

No Electronic machine could total up the number of arches which have fallen, varicose veins ruptured and legs which have been wrecked as a result of standing up at private cocktail parties in this town.

So just to make sure that such a thing can't happen in Washington's public drinkeries, Alan Payne, chairman of the D. C. Alcohol Beverage Control Board, is recommending that the regulations prohibiting stand-up drinking in such places be tightened.

A rule which has been on the books since repeal forbids drinking hard liquor in a public bar while standing. You must be seated at a table. Recently this rule has been challenged, however, and Alan wants to make sure there's no further wrecking of D. C. feet if he can help it.

Donald Quarles, deputy secretary of defense, was seated in an open grandstand surrounded by high Air Force brass watching an air show recently. It began to drizzle and one of the AF officers near him rushed off the stands, borrowed a sergeant's jacket and threw it over Quarles' shoulder.

"Great heavens, you can't put an enlisted man's jacket on a secretary," said a colonel, who whipped the sergeant's jacket off and replaced it with his own.

A general sitting two rows back jumped into the effort to protect Quarles from he elements, snatched off the colonel's jacket and replaced it with his own star-studded coat.

"Only a general's coat for a secretary," he said.

By this time Quarles was irked. "If you don't mind, gentlemen," he snapped, "just let me be all wet with the rest of you.

Capitol Elevator boys have a new game they call "Flanders Derby."

When Sen. Ralph Flanders (R-Vt.) needs a lift he'll give every button in the elevator bank the customary three quick jabs which signifies that a senator is waiting.

When the boys get this simultaneous summons from the colorful senator they'll race to get him first.

With Scores Of Hollywood gagwriters swarming around Jayne Mansfield on her whirlwind tour of the Capitol, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) came up with the best punch line of the day.

Pushing through the crowds that surrounded the busty blonde star he kept repeating, "I'm sorry, but I've got to get through to Miss Mansfield. She's my aunt."

Praise Son's Wife to Win 'Nice Mother-in-Law' Title

"The easiest way in the world for a mother-in-law to win the friendship of her daughter-in-law is to praise her in front of the son." So says one of my women readers.

Of course, she's right. And the praise needn't be blaring or seem forced.

When she is invited to dinner, the mother-in-law can ask for a recipe. That's just as easy as making a barbed remark like, "These are wonderful steaks—but they must have cost an awful lot. When you've kept house as long as I have, you'll learn ways of using cheaper cuts of meat."

When the mother-in-law is shown a new piece of furniture she will admire it extravagantly, if she wants to be friends. Or she can make the mistake so many mothers-in-law make by saying: "I've cared for modern furniture myself—but I guess it is what most young people like."

EASY TO BE NICE

It's easy for the mother-in-law to repeat compliments she has heard about her daughter-in-law. And if she is wise enough to repeat them when her son is around, she is sure to leave her daughter-in-law feeling appreciated.

It is just as easy to repeat a compliment as to relay a criticism.

A mother-in-law can either give her daughter-in-law a build-up or tear her down.

It may be only human for a mother-in-law to want to show her son that Mama is still the smartest woman in his life.

But if she is really smart, the mother-in-law will try to keep her son sold on the idea that he married the smartest, most charming woman in the world.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Unless President Eisenhower asserts more leadership than he did in 1957, Congress may make a wreck of his last three years in the White House.

What happened to his foreign aid program Thursday night—the House cut it to ribbons—can well be a foretaste of things to come.

This year, instead of leading firmly, Eisenhower wobbled all over the Washington scene: backing away from what he proposed, turning cool on what he called for, and undercutting what he urged. He's chalked up a series of big losses.

In his first four years, Eisenhower followed a policy of avoiding personal conflict and offending no one. This kept him out of brawls with Congress and helped him retain his personal popularity.

And Congress was docile, if only because he was the most powerful political figure in the country. He was popular with the people and could still run for a second term. He did and won.

But under the recently amended Constitution, this must be his last term. He can't run again. Democrats haven't had to worry about him so much as a political force any more.

And, since he can't run again and carry them to victory, Republicans have lost some of their need for him too.

Yet Eisenhower continues to act as he did before the second term began, but more weakly and hesitantly: as if all he has to do is ask for what he wants and get it.

He doesn't seem to realize that now he has to fight.

Here are examples of how, instead of leading, he has floundered around in 1957 with disastrous results to what he said he wanted:

Budget—He had scarcely sent his record peacetime budget to Congress before he began saying maybe Congress could cut it. He talked so indecisively that Congress rushed in and slashed.

Then in desperation, to halt the massacre, he had to make a personal, nationwide TV appeal for public support.

Federal aid to education — He had called on Congress for years for this program. Almost at the instant the House began considering it, he turned cool. Why? The reason given was this:

It wasn't precisely the kind of program he wanted, although it was the only one he had a chance of getting. He sat silent while his own Republicans took the school aid bill up an alley and killed it.

They did it by joining Northern Democrats in writing in an amendment aimed at the South: no segregated school could get the money. Then they switched and joined Southern Democrats in voting to kill the bill entirely.

Through this ordeal Eisenhower never lifted a finger. But the next day the White House said he was disappointed.

Civil rights — All year he had been calling his civil rights bill "moderate and decent." But as soon as the Southerners opened up on it, calling it loaded and full of cunning, Eisenhower began to have second thoughts.

He told a news conference he had just been reading the bill—this bill had been available more than a year — and didn't understand some parts of it. This cleared him of responsibility for what was in the bill.

It also gave the impression he never had bothered to read it before. More than that: it gave support to the Southerners' fight against the bill and split some of the Northern supporters of it.

Foreign aid—In his budget message of January he asked for $4,363,000,000. But he never formally asked for the money until he sent a special message to Congress May 21. And then he voluntarily chopped almost 500 million dollars off his January request.

This summer the House and Senate cut the figure another 500 millions by putting a ceiling of $3,367,000,000 on what he could get. Congress yet hadn't voted the actual money, Eisenhower found out the House wanted to give him even less.

In a last-minute effort to save his bill he did three things in a row this week: talked with congressional leaders; called a special news conference to warn he might have to call a special session of Congress if he didn't get the ceiling figure; and issued a statement asking for the money.

Thursday night the House voted to let him have, in new money, 800 millions less than the ceiling figure. Now the Senate takes a crack at it.

Retired Man Tackles Contracting Business

BY BEULAH STOWE

Some men are happy in retirement and others just can't stand it. "I was retired for five months once," says Mr. Leroy Carey, "and Mrs. Carey and I stayed on in the big house where we had reared our family. It was that house that led me into a new business and more money than I had ever earned before."

Mrs. Carey began complaining of climbing stairs, cleaning unused rooms and washing dishes. They decided to build a small house just the way they wanted it.

Mr. Carey planned the house and let the contracts himself. Friends liked it so much they wanted him to build homes for them.

Mr. Carey began studying general contracting.

He mastered the subject and has been successful in his venture, despite the fact that his only previous experience in the building trades had been in doing work around his own home, and in helping on commercial construction projects while he was still a boy.

He had been a department manager in a mail order company before his retirement.

Mrs. Carey is bookkeeper for her husband's contracting business. They work together, keep house together, and garden together.

The gardening is more than a hobby, it's a necessity, they report. Their new home is central Florida, where the lawns grow fast and the floors look like a colorful jungle display.

As for the housekeeping, they put the dishes in the dishwasher and turn it on only once a day. The house is one story and easy to keep. Has to be. There's not enough time in every day for the business, the social affairs, and the many friends they have found.

Mr. Carey says he doesn't plan to retire again. Work is his idea of retirement.

Q—"What do you think of an elderly couple buying a trailer court? I am in good health, but my husband has a heart ailment."—Mrs. T. P. R.

A—Inquire first, stopping at trailer courts and asking the owners to tell you of their own experiences. The Mobile Homes Manufacturers' Assn., 20 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill., also can advise you. Trailerites are almost the friendliest people in the country. You'd find a court pleasant, but possibly too strenuous. Why not consider a small mail order business, a stationers' or gift shop, instead?

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

'I Have Called You Friends' (John 15:15)

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

When Farrar Fenton, the able English layman scholar, who translated the Bible into modern English (Oxford University Press) translated I Corinthians 13: "If I could speak in the language of men and angels, but have not friendship, I should become an echoing trumpet," he had at least some warrant for using "friendship." Other translators had said "charity" and "love."

For Jesus had hallowed that word "friendship" when He called His disciples "friends" (John 15:15.)

I suppose there is always a question of exact meaning in translating a word. English words for those of Greek or Hebrew may be an approximation, but much scholarship gives assurance that the reader of the English Bible has a reasonably accurate rendering of what the sacred writers wrote.

In any case, the English Bible has an authority of its own, and its English words define moral and spiritual realities of their full value for those who read only in English. In this respect the word "friendship" may have all the meaning to which Jesus gave it as He spoke to His disciples.

The example of friendship are many, and two have been outstanding in literature and tradition. In the Bible it is the friendship between Jonathan and David. In the secular world it is the friendship of Damon and Pythias.

I suppose that in the language of today such friendships would be described in terms of "pals" or "buddies." The latter term at least would have strong emphasis and meaning in the light of the war experiences that brought men together in times of stress and danger.

How deep and lasting are the friendships of today? One could not answer with any accuracy or authority. But I am inclined to think that the trend is toward individualism and self-sufficiency, rather than toward relationship of mutual trust.

Men who are much together in daily business life as buddies in war are often in open or secret conflict, sparring for place or power. In my morning paper as I write it the front page story of some conspiring to oust others in a large organization. Even in professional circles such rivalry, destructive of possible friendship, is not uncommon.

Religious circles, even, are not free from the conspiring for place and authority. This is true as increasing beaucracy in church organizations makes emphasis on authority more pronounced.

However, I think it is in the church and church circles that true friendships are most commonly found, deepest and most lasting. We hear much of church quarrels, and they are often played up in the newspapers, but the great, steady stream of ongoing friendship that binds members of a church to one another are not made so evident.

As a former pastor of four churches in widely varying communities I can bear witness to this. Later, as an editor, I have seen some disgraceful exhibitions of rivalry among denominational leaders, though the great majority of such leaders have been truly Christian.

But of the churches I can say that when the members sing "Bless be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love" they mean it, and practice it. That is what makes church life so rich and fine.

Florida's Citrus Crush Gets Added Zest From Mint

BY GAYNOR MADDOX,
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Florida knows warm weather, citrus trees and how to be comfortable in the sunshine. The state produces fresh, frozen, concentrated orange, grapefruit, tangerine and blendid orange-grapefruit juice that is available all over the country in six-ounce cans.

All of them are packed with essential vitamin C. They all have refreshing flavor, too. And here are ideas for keeping cool and vital that we learned from friends in Florida.

Florida Crush (Yield: 4 servings)

One can (6 ounces) frozen concentrated orange, grapefruit or tangerine juice, shaved ice, mint, lime slices.

Put 3 tablespoons undiluted concentrate into each of 4 12-ounce glasses. Fill almost to top with shaved ice. Add ¼ cut of water to each glass; stir vigorously. Garnish with mint and Florida lime slices. Serve with straws.

Note: If desired, glasses may be frosted by dipping rim of glass in egg white, then in granulated sugar. Put in refrigerator to chill and marden frosted edge.

Broiled Fish Fillets: Broil fillets until tender. Remove from heat. Brush generously with undiluted grapefruit juice concentrate, dot with butter and sprinkle with paprika. Return to broiler and cook 3 additional minutes. Remove to serving platter and garnish with lime wedges.

Favorite Frappe: Reconstitute frozen grapefruit juice concentrate with an equal amount (1 can) of water. In tall glasses, place shaved or crushed ice to the brim. Fill with extra strength grapefruit juice and garnish with a lime slice.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Cold baked ham, chutney, canned or fresh potato balls with parsley butter, corn-on-cob, rolls, butter or margarine, melon balls and canned grapefruit sections. French dressing, peach shortcake, coffee, tea, milk.

PORTRAIT OF MR. JAMES EMERSON SLIPSADDLE UPON FIRST SEEING THE SLEEK 1957 CHRYSLER

BY E. W. BROWN

Well, at least we TRIED to capture the moon-faced radiance on old Slipsaddle's face when he first laid eyes on the '57 Chrysler.

We might have known he'd zip off at faster than shutter speed to get a close-up look and a personal try behind the wheel down at our showroom. That's the kind of acceleration built into the Chrysler. It just naturally inspires the same exuberance in those who see it—especially in those who own it.

There's no doubt about it. This is an exciting car. Lower, more youthful lines outside — yet actually more room than ever before inside. More colors and color combinations than on an artist's palette. The combination of more horsepower under the hood — yet top gasoline mileage — is the talk of the rest of the envious industry.

Drop down and have a look. Then test the zest of the sprightly new Chrysler.

You'll be pleasantly surprised at the generous allowance we will make for your present car and the convenient terms that we can arrange on the balance.

Mayor Drives Virginia's New Sweeper

JOHN ALBERT SINCLAIR is a working mayor. You can drive over to Virginia and see the mayor sweeping the streets or mowing the weeds. He enjoys the work, and doesn't complain about the wages: $300 a year flat.

He was elected mayor last April. Before that he had served six years as justice of the peace.

When he's not helping Charles S. Briggs, who doubles as superintendent of streets and alleys and chief of police, Sinclair works at his salvage business, which he started in 1940.

"Used cars and junk, that's my line," the jovial mayor says.

He's pretty proud of the new sweeper, which was delivered from the factory in Glendale, Calif., just 10 days ago. It's the only one of its kind in Illinois. The machine weighs 1,830 pounds and cost $2,755. It's powered by a 8½ horse air-cooled engine. Belts drive the curb broom and a reel with 24 horizontal brushes, and the dirt is blown into a hopper that is dumped by a hydraulic control. The hopper holds about 800 pounds.

The little sweeper has four speeds forward and can cover considerable territory in an hour. The other morning Briggs went to work on the square at 5 a.m. and had it all cleaned up by 6 a.m.

Your first oyster! Is it still a dare . . . or a delight?

Funny thing about a lot of us inland. We don't even try shellfish. But not so strange either. We just never had much at home—miles away from the sea.

But you know how we only change our minds when we want to. So Howard Johnson's is not going to urge you to try new things. You must do it all by yourself—if you want to savor the crusty flavor of our golden-crisp Tendersweet clams, or the appetizing tang of firm white meat of jumbo shrimp, or the mouth-watering sweet delicacy of butter-dipped morsels of broiled Maine lobster. THE BLOODFIN
By Ray Broekel

The Bloodfin is one of the most showy of the aquarium fishes. Its scientific name is Aphyocharax rubripinnis.

Because of its blood-red fins, it is mistaken for no other aquarium fish. Its body is a shiny silver.

It reaches a length of 1½ to 2 inches when full grown, and comes originally from Argentina.

Most tropical fishes which are suited for aquariums need rather warm temperatures ranging from 60 to 85 degrees.

The Bloodfin, however, can stand much cooler temperatures, and isn't at all uncomfortable at a 60 degree temperature.

Active But Peaceful

Bloodfins are active, peaceful, take most foods offered, and live rather long lives for aquarium fishes. A reasonable length of five years would be their life span.

It is quite difficult to tell the males from the females, although the females, at spawning time, are somewhat rounder in the body than the males.

Bloodfins are egg-layers, but aren't too easy to spawn in an aquarium. They belong to the Characin family, one of the largest families of fishes in the world. To the same order, Ostariophysi, also belong the Carps and the Catfishes.

Carps do not have teeth, which the Characins have. Characins also have a small fin, called the Adipose, between the Dorsal (top) and Caudal (tail) fins.

Nine Big Indians

By Melma Huckeby Ewert

Part 2: If Indians Come?

Great Grandma was hardly in her rocker and I on my stool when she began.

I was ten that day father went to the mill to have his wheat ground into flour. My mother had said the night before at supper, "Jerry! I used our last smidge of flour. I made four long fat loaves of saltrisin' bread."

"Yum! Yum!" chimed we children, but Father looked serious.

There had been Indian raides, lately. Father would have to take his wheat to the mill to be ground. Now the mill was far. Father would have to stay all night.

"What if Indians should come?" I asked Father.

"If Indians should come, treat them with kindness and they wont hurt you."

"What do you mean by kindness, Jerry?" asked Mother.

"Ask them in. Whatever they want give it to them. Do not let them know you are afraid."

Father looked worried when he left. I could tell by the slow way he told us "Good-bye," that he hated to leave us.

But he smiled and played cheerful and Mother didn't show a sign of fear.

"Now the Indian is sly and smart" Grandma continued. "Their Indian Scouts send out smoke signals when they have news. That is their daily paper. Indians all through the woods knew we were alone. And where Father had gone."

That evening we children were playing on the open porch (Breeze way) between the two log houses. Father built the second house when we began to crowd the littler one.

Hear Indians

Well, it was then that we heard them coming, not their step, but their grunts. They were keeping tom-tom time to their mocassined feet through the yard with their grunts.

We children tiptoed into the big house. Mother was rocking the baby. His cradle was made from a tree trunk hollowed out.

"The Indians are here Mother! Listen!" Mother stopped rocking the baby. The littliest children began to cry.

Just then we heard soft mocassined feet shuffling to the rhythm of grunts, crossing the breezeway.

Mother said quietly "Remember what Father told us."

She covered the baby and opened wide the door. We stood close around her.

"Come in," she said.

Indians Come In

Nine big Indians, blankets, feathers and all, stalked into the big room, single file, grunting their rhythm! They lined themselves around the wall.

They looked tired and hot. I remember how I was trembling. It was already dark back there in the woods.

The Indians began getting noisy with big grunts!, gutterals! "Bread! Bread!" they were demanding.

"All of you children go up to bed," said Mother, then low to Zeke, "Stay here."

Part 2: Velvet Gown

Sarah Angelica Singleton Van Buren, who had married the oldest son of the eighth president, Martin Van Buren, was hostess at the White House as President Van Buren's wife had died.

The inaugural Ball was held at Caruse's and Angelica wore a royal-blue velvet gown which became the handsomest gown in the White House costume collection in the Smithsonian Institution museum in Washington, D.C.

John Tyler was the first vice president to become president on the death of the chief executive. Tyler became the tenth president when Wm. Henry Harrison died.

After the death of his wife, Letitia Christian Tyler, his eldest son's wife became hostess at the White House. She wrote, "I have some lovely dresses that fit me to perfection—one pearl colored silk that will set you crazy."

President Tyler married Miss Julia Gardner who was twenty years old and was called "The Rose of Long Island." Women were amused at her seceptions as she waited until all were there to make a grand entrance. She wore a court costume of purple velvet and a head dress of bugles, resembling a crown.

Mud And Rain

Washington turned out in the rain and mud for the inauguration of James K. Polk, the eleventh president, who was called the "Champion of Democracy."

Mrs. Polk wore a long black velvet coat richly braided and decorated with fringe and tassels and held a fan that was to become an historic relic. Its ivory sticks were beautifully carved and its silken covering was printed on one side with portraits of eleven presidents. Mrs. Polk was a noble woman and had a great influence for good among the people she met and she was a faithful member of the First Presbyterian church. At the Inaugural Ball she wore a mazarine blue velvet dress with a fringed cape. She did not dance and later she banned dancing and the serving of wines and liquors of any kind from the White House.

Lincoln's Visit 99 Years Ago

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Few know the old frame house in Bath, Illinois, where Abraham Lincoln was entertained on August 16, 1858, by his friend, James M. Ruggles. It is readily seen from Highway 78 at the south border of Bath, a short block east of the highway.

Here is the doorway through which Lincoln entered to chat with his friend in the library until called to the dining room at the east side of the house. Through the front windows neighbors and acquaintances could be seen gathering to speak to Lincoln.

At the close of the repast Lincoln emerged from the front doorway and, standing on the porch, spoke informally to those he had known when he surveyed the town site in 1836.

The front porch has long since disappeared and the cupola on the roof has been lowered. A long el, running to the south with kitchen and service rooms, has been taken down in passing years, and the house has been given a weather-resistant sheathing for protection.

At no time has any marker designated the house where Lincoln was entertained and honored by his friend, James M. Ruggles, who at the close of the Civil War became Brigadier General. The home is now owned by Mrs. Ernest Oest who resides there with her family.

The John Drury series of articles on "Old Homes of Illinois" gives a full account of Abraham Lincoln's long friendship with General James M. Ruggles.

Flower Of The Month—

Great Blue Lobelia

By Emma Mae Leonhard

What color do you associate with autumn?

At first you may spontaneously think of the yellows of Goldenrod; the reds and yellows of vines, shrubs, and fruits. These colors do flash themselves around us, but today we are in no mood for the gaudy side of autumn.

Instead, we are looking for and dreaming of the blues of autumn.

There is a blue haze on the hills. Flocks of Bluebirds are flying around in their favorite spots, or are sitting hunched on telephone wires and lower leafless branches of trees—not too many of them, but just enough to bring bits of blue down within the reach of our lazy gaze. And the sky itself becomes a deeper blue in the autumn, or at least it seems so to us.

In many of our gardens ribbons of blue Ageratum run and wander in our perennial rows and shrub borders; whole drifts of these fuzzy lavender-blue flowers hang among the late-summer greenness. And in the damp hollows of the woods and along the overhanging moist banks of streams, these fuzzy lavender-blue heads of the Ageratum have deepened into fuzzy sky-blue cushions.

This flower isn't a true Ageratum, although most people call it that name. It is the Blue Mist Flower, which never monopolizes our woods and gardens; instead, it adds distance and serenity.

Blue Mist Flower

Perhaps you would now like for us to consider the Blue Mist Flower as the flower of the month for August, and it is running a close second in our choice. Yet we can't refrain from placing first in our blue autumn the Great Blue Lobelia. Here we see in rare spots along roadside ditches and woodland stream banks the deep, ultramarine blue spires of our August flower.

The Great Blue Lobelia will reward anyone's search for it. Here is a flower which seems to have absorbed all of the blues of autumn —the blue of the misty haze, the blue of the Bluebird's wing, and the blue of the autumn sky. On its three-parted lip is the white of clouds, which makes this concentrated blue even bluer.

No wonder that our Great Blue Lobelia has become a favorite flower in gardens across the world. It's one of our favorites too, especially in August.

Rocket Ranger Serial —

Century 21 Columbus

By Ray Broekel

Chapter 1: Learn Martian

The first Earth expedition to Mars was getting along fine. Jack Baines, the rocket navigator and language expert, had worked out the Martian language and the entire crew had now gotten to the point where they could at least express common ideas to the natives.

With the natives' help, they had constructed living quarters which they powered with a number of oxygenerators from the alumisteel hut kits. Although oxygen in the atmosphere of Mars was way below that of earth, the earthmen were beginning to learn how to breathe without their oxygen helmets on.

"It's just like climbing mountains," explained Dr. Wharton.

"You have to accustom yourself gradually to less oxygen in the air."

Wopang, chief of the Martian tribe, had made available for the crew a number of the Martian 'horses' for traveling purposes. These animals were called Gollas and were just the thing for getting around on Mars. Various equipment brought by the earthmen for traveling on the ground just didn't quite do the trick, but the Gollas did.

Gollas were in appearance very much like Dr. Wharton had described them on his first glimpse of one on the Martian desert. They had four humps similar to the humps on an earth camel. This allowed up to three people to ride on a Golla at one time. Each passenger would sit in between the humps.

Eight Legs

Instead of just two pairs of legs, they had four pairs, or eight well-padded feet altogether. When you consider their length you could see why they had been provided with four pairs. An average length of twelve feet was an awful lot of body to drag around without lots of support from underneath.

The Martians had caught a number of these creatures on the desert and had domesticated them much as man domesticated the wild horse back on earth. They understood simple vocal commands and followed the pull of reins and harness very easily.

Joe Higgins and Max Bottomly had started making a thorough study of the natives immediately upon arrival at their village. One of the results of their work was that they came up with a pretty good picture of the natives.

This Martian tribe had adapted itself to the varied temperatures and small amounts of water present on Mars very well. Their short, squat bodies, almost completely covered with a thick mat of hair, could stand temperatures well below freezing.

Crude Shelters

While in areas where caves were available, the Martians made use of them for homes. Out in the open they constructed crude shelters made out of animal skins.

These served as a protection against the severe wind storms. The natives had learned to bolt the shelters securely to stakes driven deep into the ground to prevent them from blowing away in the high-speed gusts that were a part of every Martian storm.

From what Wopang and others in the tribe had said, there were many similar tribes that roamed the face of Mars. All of them were nomadic, that is they moved around from place to place, more or less following the food supply.

During Martian winters they were usually near one of the polar regions where water was available. As summer approached they would follow along with the animal herds that advanced toward the tropic zones. Melting ice flowed into the various canali and again brought to life the dormant plants that grew near their banks.

Strange Fruit

Small gardens in which were grown some of the fast maturing edible crops of Mars were found in the villages. A purplish plant, which bore a fruit very similar in taste to a tomato, grew quite rapidly from seed.

In fifteen Martian days, or thirty earth days, one of these Mawga plants produced fruit from a seed planted in the ground. Mawga fruits were about the size of a basketball.

These fruits could be eaten raw, cooked, or dried. The Martians even made a kind of bread from the flour gotten by grinding up dried Mawga fruits.

All Mawga Meal

The crew had great fun in making an entire meal out of Mawga. First they had Mawga fried in Golla lard. Jack Baines remarked that it reminded him of fried chicken back on earth. Freshly sliced Mawga served as the vegetable.

They had Mawga juice to drink and Mawga bread spread with Mawga preserves.

To top off the meal they had dried Mawga, similar in taste to dried apricots, for desert.

An American Every One Should Know

Laura Bridgman

By Walter B. Hendrickson

Some people are handicapped by being blind, but they can hear. Others are handicapped by being deaf, but they can see. But think about the child who is both blind and deaf, and so without the means of knowing what is going on around him.

Here in Jacksonville we have schools for the blind and for the deaf, and we know how much they can learn, and what good citizens they can become. Can the deaf-blind child learn? We all know about Miss Helen Keller, who is blind and deaf, and yet has had a busy and useful life.

Miss Keller was taught to speak and then was educated by a teacher who learned how to teach the deaf-blind at Samuel Gridley Howe's school for the blind in Massachusetts. (It was called the Perkins Institution, because a Mr. Perkins gave much of the money to found the school.)

Solves Hard Problem

The methods for teaching the deaf-blind were developed when Mr. Howe brought an eight year-old deaf-blind child to his school in 1837. This was Laura Bridgman, a child who had lost her sight and hearing when she was two years old as the result of a very severe attack of scarlet fever, and, since learning to talk depends on hearing other people speak, she was also mute.

Laura was a very bright little girl, and her mother and father loved her, so that she was given very good care, and soon could find her way around the house. By imitating her mother, she learned to sew and knit.

To the Bridgman home came Dr. Howe who had heard about Laura, and, after he saw her, he felt that she could have an education just like any other child's, in spite of the fact that she was so handicapped.

So Laura was sent to Perkins Institution, and there Dr. Howe and other teachers taught her to talk by making signs with her fingers. She learned to write, both with a pencil and by fitting blocks with raised letters in holes in a board. The teachers taught Laura by the slow method of giving her objects to feel, and then spelling out the name of the object by touching particular parts of Laura's hand and fingers for each letter of the word.

Laura Helps Others

By these methods and others, Laura learned arithmetic and geography, as well as reading and writing. She was a very happy child, and enjoyed learning everything she could. Soon she was able to help her teachers, especially with other deaf-blind children who came to the school.

She lived to be quite an old lady, staying at the Perkins School where she felt at home, and where she felt she could be of most service to other people.

Laura Bridgman's great contribution to the welfare of all deaf-blind children was that she proved that they, too, could be educated and live happy, useful lives.

Wishing On A Star

By Dorris Walsh Hendrickson

Chapter 4:

Jerry is visiting his grandparents on the farm and he would like to have a horse to enter in the Junior Horse Race. As he wishes on a star he sees a horse that looks like Pegasus and turns out to have that name.

Jerry returns the horse and makes friends with the young man who owns him and who helps Jerry prepare to enter the race on Pegasus. Jerry spends so much time preparing for the race that the calf he enters does not even get honorable mention so now as Grandpa says all Jerry's hopes are "riding in the race."

That afternoon, when Jerry was mounted on Peg, Bill came up for a last word with him. "I'll be at the fence yelling for you and Peg, Jerry."

Then Jerry knew that not only his own hopes were riding in that race, but also the hopes of Bill, who was too old now to race Peg himself. He saw his grandparents wave from the fence. They would be hoping their grandson would win, Jerry knew.

He looked up at the blur of faces in the grandstand, wondered how many of those people would be wanting Pegasus to win. Suddenly it seemed as if there was too much at stake in this race. He wanted to turn and just ride away.

But all these thoughts were lost in a loud clashing of cymbals, as the band finished playing. The race announcer was talking from the loud speaker.

It was time to line up. As Peg trotted surely to his place, Jerry was glad for those hours of practice he and Peg had had.

They're Off

As the gun sounded, and the horses started off, Jerry remembered that no one would expect him and Peg to do more than their best. "And we'll both do that, won't we, boy?"

As he and Bill had planned it, Jerry let Peg go along at his own pace, just keeping him up with the slowest. But this heat and dust and noise were different from the quiet of the rough track in the pasture where he and Peg had trained, with only Bill's shouts to urge them on. Now there were ten swift, nervous horses running all around them, an on each an excited, yelling boy, as intent as Jerry on coming in first.

It was hard to see some riders stretching out ahead! Jerry's hands were moist, but he kept himself from giving Peg his head and unleashing his flying power. In the practice runs, Peg had shown that he could give out with a startling burst of zoom in the stretch.

Now Or Never

Finally, half way around the track, Jerry knew the moment had come. It was now or never. He leaned forward and whispered in Peg's ear:

"Go it, Peg! Show 'em that old lightning in your heels!"

Peg twitched his ears, stretched out his long neck, and let his hooves strike out sharply at the track. Jerry hugged the horse's sides with his knees. He felt the air billow out his shirt.

They were catching up and passing one horse after another. Jerry grinned. They were going to make it!" But the grin disappeared in a hurry as he saw that the long-legged roan was doing the same thing Peg was. And the boy on the roan was grinning at Jerry.

Roan Pulls Ahead

With only a little way to go, the roan and Peg were out ahead of the others. Jerry was glad he was on the inside next to the fence, but even with this advantage, Peg was letting the roan get ahead, until it was about to cut in and take the place by the fence.

In his excitement, Jerry leaned forward and shouted in Peg's ear:

"Fly, Pegasus, fly!"

What happened then, Jerry was never to understand. Suddenly, he no longer felt the jar of Peg's hooves beating against the ground. He only felt the rush of air against his cheek, as Peg caught up with the roan, kept even, then surged ahead to win by half a length.

Jerry glowed as Peg was acclaimed the winner. The band blared and the people cheered. The judges were bringing the grand prize radio, and a wreath of field daisies for Peg.

Broken Rule?

But there was one thing he must do, and he didn't want to do it. Before he would touch the radio, he leaned over and asked the judge:

"Is there any rule in the race books against a horse flying?"

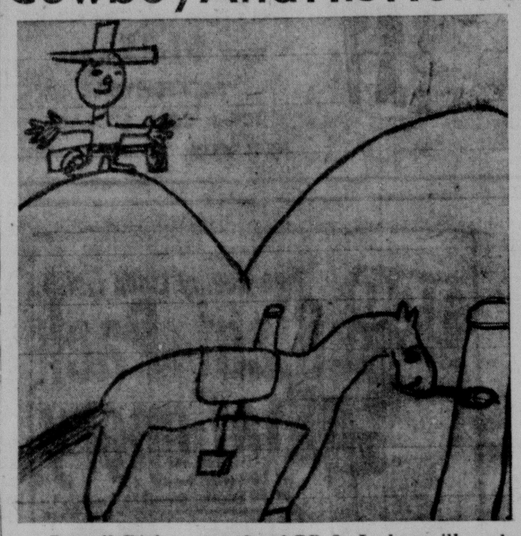

The man guffawed and slapped his knee, and Jerry reddened. Then the judge straightened his face and said:

"No, boy, there's no rule against flying. And a good thing, too, because I feel sure many's a boy and horse have found themselves flying those last few feet to victory."

He put his hand on Jerry's leg and added:

"Even boys who weren't riding Pegasus, the flying horse."

Cowboy And His Horse

Russell Dickey, age 9, of RR 3, Jacksonville, who attends the North Jacksonville school drew this gay picture of a cowboy, wearing a two-gun holster, just ready to go riding on his faithful horse.

Russell may now come in anytime for his JUNIOR JOURNALIST pencil and Junior Press Card, which all boys and girls earn who have a drawing or something they have written printed on their Junior page.

BIRTHDAY PARADE

Birthday Record?

Mrs. Leo Wilson of Merritt, who has a grandson, William Hoots, and niece, Judy Coultas, marching in today's parade and four more grandchildren to march in coming Sundays, writes—

"I wonder if I set a Birthday Record as a grandmother of 13 with five of them having August birthdays (four in one family). And my niece is an August Birthday child too!

"My husband and son-in-law's birthdays are also in August. Maybe you think this isn't a busy month for us!"

This certainly sounds like a Birthday Record, don't you think so? What fun August must be for Mrs. Wilson!

Birthday Marchers

William Bruce Hoots, Merritt, age 4, Aug. 8

Ronald Keith Kern, New Berlin, age 3, Aug. 16

Judy Kay Coultas, Exeter, age 6, Aug. 20

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to all three of you marchers!

Marlene's Party

Miss Marlene Mohr of Carrollton, who celebrated her 8th birthday anniversary Thursday, was honoree at a party given in the city park that afternoon by her mother, Mrs. Dale Mohr.

Guests were Alice Hansen, Sandra White, Frances Benner, Linda Berry, Robert Richey, Donna Kay Smith, Carlo Hildebrant, Patty Berry, Marsha Combs, Carter Wheeler, Janet Stendeback, Becky Ann Smith, Mike Gillingham, Samalee McCarthy, Stephen Roberts and Patty McLane.

Party For Sandra

Mrs. William White entertained at a birthday party Monday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Carrollton park honoring her daughter, Sandra, who was celebrating her 6th birthday.

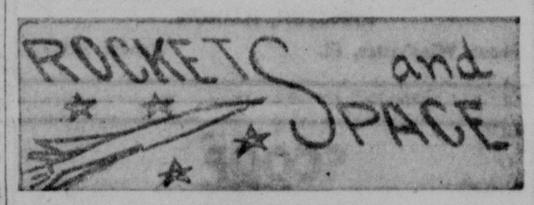

Guests were Beverly Staples, Frances Benner, Marlene Mohr, Adri Turner, Sharon Standefer, Doris Jean McCann, Randy White, Bobby Pinkerton, Judy Roth, Stephen Berry, Julie Voiles, Rita Sue Sheets, Janet Prough, Marian Fisher, Martha Fisher and Jimmie Whiteside.

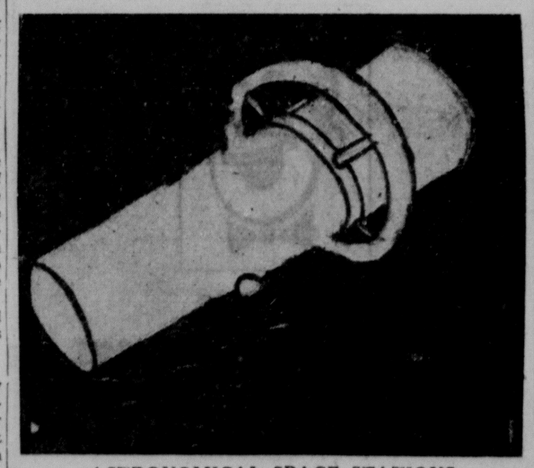

Assisting Mrs. White in entertaining were Miss Virginia Goans, Mrs. Ethel Goans and Mrs. Dor Benner.

Your Birthday

To march in the BIRTHDAY PARADE send your name, address, age, birthdate and a photo or snapshot if you have one (you may call for it after it has been printed) 2 or more weeks before your birthday. We will save it until the Suunday nearest before your birthday. (We have a picture of such a sweet little girl we can hardly wait for the right Sunday to print it!)

If you have a party, you may write and tell us about that later. We like snapshots and photos with party stories too, if you have them.

ASTRONOMICAL SPACE STATIONS

The two space stations we have described will not be satisfactory for astronomical observations because they revolve around the earth so fast that it will make it impossible for an astronomer to observe a star from them more than an hour at a time. The alternate hours, the earth would be between the station and the star.

So the astronomical space stations will be built out in orbits where it will take twelve to twenty-four hours for them to revolve around the earth.

The speed required to keep a space station in its orbit decreases the farther away you go, because the satellite speed has to be enough to give the needed momentum to equal the attraction of earth's gravity.

To get to the orbit of these astronomical space stations, a space ship would accelerate just enough faster than 18,000 miles-per-hour to coast up to the astronomical space station before earth's gravity could stop them.

Fire Rockets

The ship would then use its rockets increasing its speed to make it high enough to remain in the orbit of the space station. This method would take much less fuel than starting out from earth at the speed needed to stay in the orbit of the astronomical space station.

The space observatories would not have domes because there is no weather in space. The telescope would just be out in the open.

There would be pressurized cabins at the focus of the telescope (where the viewer looks.)

HOW TO BUILD AN ELECTRIC FAN

DAVID WINKELMANN of the Philadelphia 4-H Ag club told his state fair auditors last week that putting in an electric doorbell is pretty simple. He's the 17 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Winkelmann of Ashland.

His "how-to-do it" demonstration won a red ribbon. Ruel Jurgens is the club leader.

'IT'S EASY TO INSTALL A DOORBELL'

A HIGH PERCENTAGE of the 4-H demonstrations shown at the state fair dealt with electricity.

Farmers now know electricity is by far their most efficient and inexpensive hired hand. The fathers, generally speaking, don't know the difference between a watt and an ohm, but they encourage their sons to learn the principles of electricity and how to install and maintain electrical equipment.

Steve Howell and Neale Cloyd won a pair of blue ribbons last week when they showed how to construct an electric fan. Steve is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Howell of Winchester and Neale is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cloyd, also of Winchester.

They are members of West End Whiz Kids led by Rex Worrall and Everett Howe.

Name Committees For Waverly Bowling Alley

WAVERLY — James Whalen, chairman of the group endeavoring to locate a suitable place for a bowling alley, appointed three chairmen to investigate three vital phases of the work to be carried out in completing the project.

The committee chairmen named were Lloyd Hale as chairman for the building committee; James Handy, chairman of the Equipment committee; and Harold Lowery, chairman of the Stock and Sales committee. Each chairman was given the opportunity of selecting his own committee members from those persons now pledged to assist with the work of bringing a bowling alley to Waverly.

Whalen pointed out that the duties of the building committee are to investigate local buildings and building sites that would be suitable for the location of a bowling alley. The equipment committee is to make the same type of investigation as to types of equipment available and the cost of their installation. The two groups will need to work together since certain types of equipment might call for more conversion expenses than at some other location, and the cost of converting any building to this purpose is an additional point for the building committee to consider.

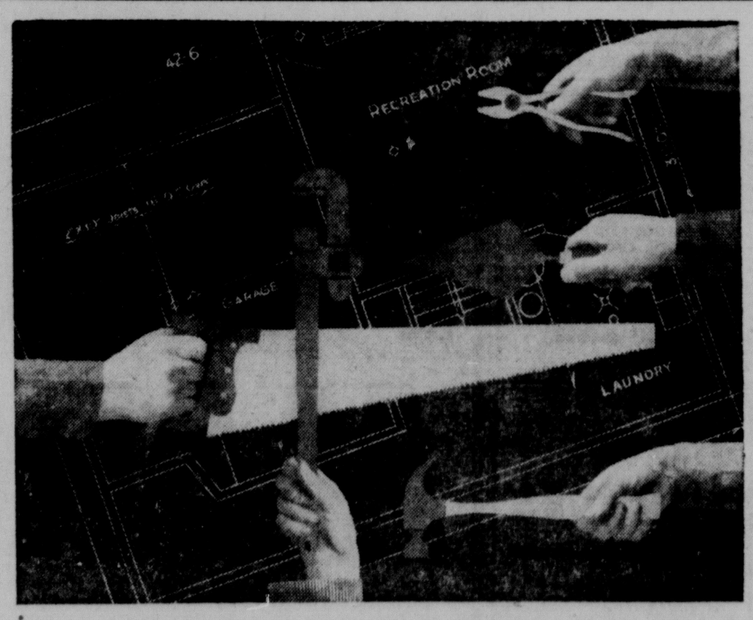

Whalen emphasized that the committees now appointed have no power to contract for any building sites, or to purchase any equipment, that authority will be with the first board of directors to be elected from stockholders after articles of incorporation have been drawn up.

Handy, accompanied by a group of interested parties, was in St. Louis Thursday, interviewing various suppliers of bowling equipment and getting figures needed.

Lowery named Dale Wilcox and Russell Alderson as other members on his Stock Sale committee.

Whalen has set August 26 as the next meeting of the group at KP Hall.

Miss Mary Johnston's New Book Depicts Details Of Roman Life

Editor's Note — Miss Mary Johnston, author of a new book, "Roman Life," published by Scott Foresman & Co., is former head of the classic department at MacMurray College. She is a sister of Mrs. Elisabeth Yeager, who for several years was telegraph editor of the Jacksonville Journal Courier. This feature story by Olga Gize Carlile appeared in The Freeport Journal-Standard and is reprinted through courtesy of that newspaper.

MISS MARY JOHNSTON, author of the new "Roman Life," has a medallion from the Italian government for her 1932 revision of her father's "Private Life of the Romans." A native of Jacksonville, Ill., she went to Freeport to live in 1951 when she retired as head of the classics department of MacMurray College, Jacksonville.—Freeport Journal-Standard photo by Olga Gize Carlile.

By OLGA GIZE CARLILE

Though the Romans had no cars or airplanes, one finds when reading the new book, "Roman Life," by Miss Mary Johnston, 714 W. Homer St., that their way of life wasn't so far from our own way of living.

The book, which came out last week, tells us how the Romans worked and played, what they wore and ate, how their cities were built and their homes furnished.

We learn that Romans were better farmers than we had in this country until fairly recent times.

They knew about plowing and manuring and could test soil for sourness without litmus paper. They understood seed selection and practiced rotation of crops.

They had slaves to take the place of machinery. The slaves repaired and even made farm tools and implements.

Had Plumbing, Furnaces

Even then they had plumbing and their own form of central heating. Furnaces circulated warm air by tile pipes in hollow walls and under floors.

They also had many-storied apartment buildings, buildings with decorated ceilings, carved and gilded paneling, carved doors and mosaic floors and very elegant and beautiful furniture. Homes, however, were furnished sparsely according to modern standards, and they had cushions but no upholstery.

Wrist watches were not known then but they were able to tell time by sundials and water clocks. Illumination in the houses was provided by containers, which held olive oil or melted fat, with loosely twisted threads for a wick.

In classical times, in spite of not having electric razors, Roman men were clean-shaven and wore their hair short. Citizens of wealth had their hair and beards kept in order by their slaves. Public barber shops were used by the middle class, while the very poor found it easy to go unshaven and unshorn.

Women Loved Jewelry

Women then, as now, were very fond of jewelry and spent great sums on rings, brooches, pins, etc. Some precious stones were used but on the whole most jewelry was of beautiful and elegant work in gold. Clothing for women was made of wool, linen, cotton and silk, gracefully draped.

Romans ate little meat, from early times. Gardens provided a wide variety to the menu and gardeners gave much attention to greens for salads. Miss Johnston says that cress and lettuce are often mentioned. Poppy seeds, anise, mint, mustard, etc., were cultivated for seasoning. Chickens, ducks, geese and pigeons were raised for the table.

There were huge stone and concrete theaters in Roman days for plays and public festivals, but there were no commercial producers. Some of the theaters have been restored and are now being used for open-air productions.

The Romans paved some of their streets—the Appian Way was the first great highway, built in 312 B.C. They also had wonderful aqueducts and drains and sewer systems.

One big thing lacking in their lives, Miss Johnston said, was the coffee with which we start the day.

Book Has 473 Pictures

The book, a big flat volume, 9¼ by 7¼ inches, is bound in the deep red which was the Roman purple, lettered in gold. The text, set in very readable type with wide margins, has 473 illustrations, including one color plate.

"Roman Life" is the successor to "The Private Life of the Romans" the standard textbook and reference in its field for many years. It was the work of the late Dr. Harold Whetstone Johnston, head of the Latin department at Indiana University.

Miss Johnston, who was head of the Latin (and Greek) department at MacMurray College, revised her father's book in 1932.

Now the new book contains the same material, with additions, in a new text, with many more pictures. Our knowledge of how the Romans lived, their advanced knowledge of heating, water supply, farming, etc., is constantly increasing with new archaeological finds.

The book is expected to be a textbook for college students, and a reference book for high school and college students in Latin and other subjects.

Honored By Italy

A frequent contributor to classical journals, Dr. Johnston has given papers before a number of the national and regional classical associations.

She went to Freeport to join her sister, Mrs. Elisabeth Yeager, in June 1951 when she retired as head of the classics department at MacMurray College in Jacksonville, Ill.

With the exception of one year teaching in an Indianapolis, Ind., high school and the years she spent in graduate study in Chicago, New York and Rome, all Miss Johnston's professional life was at MacMurray.

Her degrees include bachelor and master of arts degrees from Indiana University, a doctor's degree from Columbia University and an honorary D.H.L., doctor of humane letters from MacMurray.

She also has a bronze medallion from the government of Italy in recognition of the scholarship in the revised "Private Life of the Romans."

Students All Over World

Her hobbies are gardening, and reading cookbooks and mystery stories. This June her garden at 714 W. Homer St. was filled with roses in profusion. Miss Johnston also does beautiful, exacting embroidery and hand work.

She has students now living all over the world. Donald L. Breed, editor-publisher of The Freeport Journal-Standard was a student of Miss Johnston in freshman Latin when she taught one class while doing graduate study at the University of Chicago.

Bluffs Railroad To Receive New Safety Devices

BLUFFS—Considerable activities are being seen in the Wabash Railroad yards in Bluffs this week. All but four of the tracks are being removed from across State Route 100 in preparation to the installation of crossing signals and gates. This is a safety measure long needed, however it means the unemployment of three men who have been crossing-watchmen. New and heavier rails are replacing the crossings to remain and welding crews are on the job.

The job is expected to be completed in about five or six weeks. The switching in the yards will be done in the main part in the west end with cars to the Smith Coal yards being taken in on the east and the cars for the Bluffs Farmers Grain Company from the West.

Brief News Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mullen have returned from a vacation trip through southern Illinois, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

Roland Deterding who has taught school at Stronghurst for the past two years has been employed this year at the Gilman High School.

Miss Charlotte Evans, a senior at Western Illinois University, a graduate of Bluffs High School, has been employed as commercial teacher at the Riverton High School for this next year. She will live with her parents in Springfield.

Terry, Kay and Patti Schwagmeyer of Atlanta, Ga., are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krusa and other relatives in the Bluffs and Chapin communities. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Schwagmeyer returned home after a weeks visit. They will return to Bluffs the last of August.

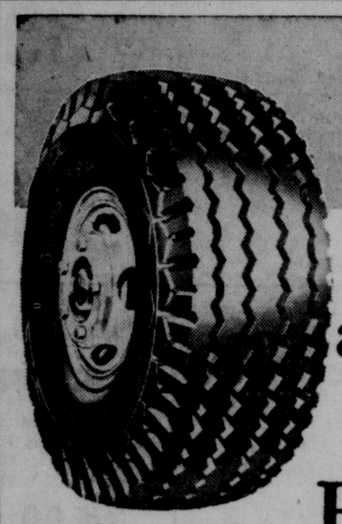

Mrs. Amelia Mueller and grandsons, Larry and Neil, and Mrs. Zela Hyler of St. Louis are visiting the Mr. and Mrs. Olen Muellers at Breckenridge, Colo.

PETERSON said, "You . . . you don't understand marshal. To me, this is just a matter of getting Dorsey back. To us, it's much, much more. You don't have any right to talk to me like that, not without knowing the town."

"What are you afraid of?"

"Afraid?"

"Yes, this whole town, afraid. Are you foolish enough to think that a mangy bunch of hide hunters can keep this town alive?"

"The hide business is the life of this town—"

"Sure it is! Now! But are you so blind you think it can go on forever?"

"I saw a herd out there on the prairie today as big as any I've ever seen."

"Yes," Blanchard said, "and eight bulls to a cow. And the guns blasting from Canada down into Texas, the railroads reaching out to more hide towns like this one every day, tanneries begging for hides at good prices. You've got two or three years Mr. Peterson, and so has this town, unless you find something better to feed on than buffalo."

There was quiet for a few seconds. Then Blanchard said, "You're wrong, Mr. Peterson, dead wrong. In five years there'll be enough homesteaders along this river to give this town a solid footing. They'll need this town. This prairie is due to be plowed up, just like up north Blue Springs doesn't have to be afraid."

"I . . . I don't know, marshal. Maybe you're right. All I know for sure is that our trouble started when you came to town—"

"Your trouble started the first day you kow-towed to the Clements. You let men like that get a jump on you and they don't know where to stop. You've got to show them where."

It got so interesting I stepped back inside. Peterson was standing behind his desk. I could see the cigar shaking in his hand and ashes dropping to the floor.

"What can I do?"

Blanchard looked at me, like he wanted me to say something. I didn't know what to say. I shrugged. Peterson was troubled bad. I could see. His back wasn't near so stiff now, his hand not so steady.

Blanchard said, "You wanted to deal with Pike. Deal with me."

• • •

PETERSON put out the cigar, not half smoked, on a corner of the desk. "I don't think I could deal with you."

"Try," Blanchard said.

"What do you want?"

"Listen. I want you to do what you should have done a long time ago. This town has got to stand solid against the Clements."

"That's insane . . ."

"No. They wouldn't have taken Dorsey off that train in the first place if they'd had anything to fear from the town. You had a good marshal, from all I hear. All you'd had to do was give McNabb some backing."

"I won't argue that," Peterson said. "That's done."

"But the rule is still good. Maybe it's not too late. You could carry the town with you. Or drive it ahead of you, like you've been doing. This town has got to make a stand against the Clements, before it's too late."

"That would bring open war."

"No. I have reason to believe they're edgy now. I'm thinking they might bring Dorsey back to me. They bought more than they can pay for. If the town got its back up now, it might tip it our way."

Peterson walked to a window and looked out across the tracks at the loaded bone ricks. I wondered what he saw there. He said, "Then . . . what then? What if they bring him back?"

"Then I take him and go. The trouble is over."

"Without punishment for . . . the ones who took him?"

"Both parties to a bargain got to have something to trade. They've got Dorsey. To get him, I've got to give up something. So, after I leave. I'm willing to pretend that nothing happened. If I leave with Dorsey."

"I see," Peterson said. "Of course, you're guessing, marshal. You have your reasons for believing as you do but you're guessing. Suppose the town made the stand you ask for. You mentioned a bargain. For our part, we'd have to threaten to drive these parties out, or bring them to justice, if they didn't turn the man loose. Do you know what that involves?"

"I think so," Blanchard said.

• • •

PETERSON grunted low in his throat. He turned away from the window. "You're asking us to accept your judgment in this thing. You've been here two, three days and we've had nothing but trouble since you came. You think the townspeople would accept your judgment?"

I said, "They better." I was surprised at my nerve. Blanchard looked at me. . got his message. Keep my horns out of it.

"They might," Blanchard said. "These men had some courage once, or they wouldn't be in this country. Once a man has got a feel of courage, he remembers how good it was."

"Courage, you say. Remember, marshal, when this is over you leave Blue Springs. The rest of us have to stay here and live with the consequences of what we do now."

Blanchard said, "You can't get away from something like this. Trouble carries a taint. If you run from it when you shouldn't the taint goes with you."

Peterson said, "I'll have to talk to people."

Pittsfield Plans For Annual Fall Festival

PITTSFIELD—Plans are progressing for the annual Fall Festival to be held here on Sept. 4-6, of which the annual Lion's Club Carnival is a part. Committees and business men are enthusiastic about the Festival and are making every effort to make this one of the best they have ever presented.

Gene Hoover, of the Town and Country Store, is general chairman. Pete Johnson, manager of the General Telephone Company, is chairman of the entertainment committee and reports that several new and different features have been booked. Earl Zimmerman of the Zimmerman Brothers Auto Sales is chairman of the finance committee and has a plan for a drive to raise funds for financing the Festival soon to begin.

Mrs. Guy Zimmerman is chairman of the Queen's Contest, in which capacity she has served for the past several years. Mrs. Clarence Marshall and Mrs. R. W. Schimmel Jr., are in charge of the Home Arts exhibit which will be held in the Graham building on the north side of the square this year, with many prizes to be awarded. Mrs. Albert Ransom, of the Jack and Jill Shop, will be in charge of the window shopping contest which was a popular feature last year. A style show with the clothing stores cooperating will be held on Thursday night, and the children's parades will be held on Friday afternoon.

The Lion's Carnival, to be held on each of the nights, needs no introduction to the community. Funds derived from it are used for the community projects during the year. There will be a lot of entertainment during the three days and many prizes will be given by the merchants of the city.

Mrs. Bill Greife, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce is busy with the secretarial work incidental to arranging for the occasion.

University of Illinois corn breeders are testing 45 different crosses from 10 selected inbred lines this summer for their resistance to corn borer attack.

BUYING A NEW HOME?

How to tell if the wiring is up-to-date

Three-wire, 100-ampere service entrance brings ample electricity to your home.

100-ampere fuse box has 8 or more 120-volt circuits, and a separate 240-volt circuit for each major appliance.

Plenty of convenience outlets for lights and small appliances.

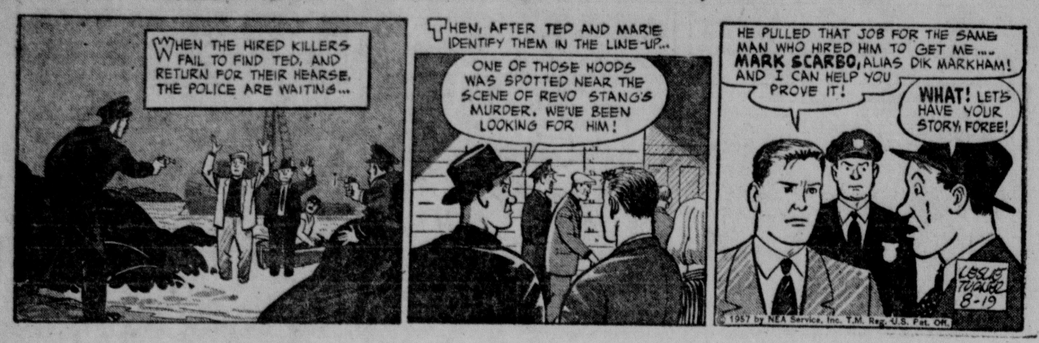

When you look at a home, you can quickly see its many features including the plumbing, the condition of the paint and roof and whether the kitchen is modern, efficient and attractive. The state of the wiring is not quite so obvious. But adequate wiring is essential if you expect to enjoy fully the benefits of modern electrical living.

Here are three quick checks you can make to determine if the home does have adequate wiring—plenty of electric housepower to operate all lights and appliances at full efficiency. Take time to check. You'll be happier in an adequately wired home, and save the cost of adding wiring later, too.
